Our Historic Senate House Is Rededicated

By TIM SCHUSTER

KINGSTON

The venerable old grey stones of the Senate House soaked up Wednesday afternoon's sunlight and heard the music of the drum and fife once again as the state rededicated the site and officials locked backward in time.

"When the first Senate convened here," noted guest speaker William T. Conklin, deputy majority leader of the state senate, "They were really on the run . . . They had to stay alive and operate."

He recounted times of national crisis he had experienced while growing up and as a man, remembering that each had seemed at the time to be the nation's greatest tragedy and, without any direct allusions to this nation's current crisis, gave the opinion that "in every era, man could give a word of hope from this very spot . . . As Americans, we owe so much to those who have gone before."

"We owe it to those in the past to rededicate the spots in history to their memory," said the senator, remembering a session the State Senate held at Kingston's Senate House three years ago. Even in those cramped quarters, he noted, "the strength of government was apparent.

F. L. Rath Jr., deputy commissioner for Historic Preservation in New York State, noted that the Senate House program was the third in a series of rededication ceremonies around the state that started this year with Washington's Headquarters at Newburgh, and is tied in with Heritage '76, a bicentennial celebration for statewide historic resource management.

The specific aims of Heritage '76 are to "repair and restore structures and preserve documents and artistic collections" at designated sites, and to interpret the history of the community as well as the sites themselves.

"The Senate House is indeed a major historic site," he said.

And he quoted the late poet Nancy Newhall: "Preservation is humanity caring for the future."

State Senator Richard Schermerhorn was not present, due to announced illness in his family, and John P. Remensnyder, chairman of the Senate House Association, was another announced speaker who did not appear.

Kenneth Hasbrouck, vice-president of the Association, reported to those assembled on folding chairs on the Senate House lawn that the site has legally belonged to the people of New York State since 1887, but was owned "morally" by them since 1777 when Kingston served as the first capital of New York State.

Some capital improvements hoped for, said master of ceremonies Nash Castro, general manager of the Palisades Interstate Park Commission, are a new roof for the Senate House, acquisition of the adjacent Red Cross building, and climate control and security systems for both houses to preserve their interiors.

The program was begun with the color guard of the 1st Battalion, 156th Field Artillery, New York National Guard, hailed as the oldest continuous military unit in the United States, established in 1658.

And a group of youngsters billed as the Stockaders, brought period costumes, a drummer, two flutists, and an aggregation of singers to perform two numbers reminiscent of the spirit of '76.

Numerous other public officials were present for the pageantry, including State Senator Edwyn Mason, Assemblyman H. Clark Bell, President-elect Robert Brown of Ulster Community College, Mayor Francis Koenig, and County Historian Harry Rigby.

The Senate House, with foundation estimated at being 296 years old, is located at Clinton Avenue and North Front Street in Kingston and is the second oldest State Historic Site in the system.

Herbert Cutler is Senate House superintendent, and the site is operated by Palisades Interstate Park Commission. It is open, without charge, Wednesday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Sunday from 1-5 p.m.

Nixon's Odds in House Rated Slim by Leaders

WASHINGTON (AP) — With House debate on the impeachment question due to start in two weeks, some leading congressmen representing both parties and various political philosophies say President Nixon's chances are poor.

Rep. John M. Ashbrook, R-Ohio, a leading House conservative who supports impeachment, said Wednesday he expects the House to vote to impeach Nixon by nearly a 3-1 margin.

House Republican Whip Leslie Arends, generally considered the Republican congressional leader closest to Nixon, said of Nixon's chances of avoiding impeachment: "I would not tell him it looks good."

House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill predicted more than 75 per cent of the House members will vote to impeach the President.

Related stories, photo on page 3.

O'Neill said no firm counts have been taken but said his discussions with members indicate no more than 38 of the 248 House Democrats and fewer than 80 of the 187 Republicans will support the President on impeachment.

Rep. Joe D. Waggonner, D-La., a strong Nixon supporter, thinks even fewer than 38 Democrats will vote against impeachment, O'Neill said.

And the leader of the unsuccessful Nixon defense in the House Judiciary Committee, Rep. Charles Wiggins, R-Calif., said, "At the moment, I would have to say the odds are that the House would pass them (the articles of impeachment)."

The comments came as the House prepared for debate on the three impeachment articles approved by the Judiciary Committee.

A number of procedural matters have to be settled, such as the length of time for debate, whether the proceedings in the House chamber will be televised and whether the committee's articles will be open for amendment.

Meanwhile, there were these related developments:

—O'Neill, a close friend of Vice President Gerald R. Ford, said Ford is well aware of the possibility that Nixon will be removed from office. That step would require a two-thirds vote in the Senate after a majority vote in the House to impeach the President.

—Two senators on a panel studying impeachment rules said they oppose a strict definition of what would be required to convict Nixon in a Senate trial. Sens. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., and James Allen, D-Ala., said each senator would make his own judgments by his own standards.

Agonies of War Recalled

By CARL GRAHAM

MARLBORO

Mr. and Mrs. Pat Sophoclides of Marlboro are on their way today to New Jersey for a rest after their experience in Cyprus, where they were trapped by the Turkish invasion.

"A vacation from a vacation," Mrs. Sophoclides called it.

The couple, accompanied by their 16-year-old daughter Alexis, flew to Athens in late June and traveled to Cyprus by boat. On their itinerary were visits to Mr. Sophoclides' relatives living in Morthou, a suburb of Nicosia, and to Mr. and Mrs. John Savas, formerly of Newburgh and recently returned to Cyprus to make their home there.

"When the government changed and Archbishop Makarios was deposed, we figured that was as far as it would go," Mrs. Sophoclides said in a telephone interview from her daughter's home in Southington, Conn.

While visiting at the Savas' new home near the beach in Kyrenia, they were awakened at about 5:30 a.m. on Saturday, June 29 by the sound of planes overhead. Turkish jets began bombing Kyrenia and the two families hastily gathered in the cellar of the Savas' home for a conference. The unanimous decision was to try to make their way to Nicosia, the capital, in the Savas' car as soon as the bombing stopped.

Cyprus cease-fire threatens to crumble. Story page 28.

About 10 miles out of Kyrenia the road was strafed by a Turkish fighter-bomber. They drove up close to a retaining wall and took shelter in the space between the wall and car until the strafing stopped. They then made their way to a small mountain village, where they remained for three days.

While in the village they spoke with Associated Press Correspondent Holger Jensen, who was on his way from Nicosia to Kyrenia to cover the invasion. Jensen's dispatch mentioning his conversation with the Sophoclides and Savas families was the only word received about them by relatives here until they were evacuated to London.

"We are very grateful to Mr. Jensen," Mrs. Sophoclides said. "He advised us to get out of the mountains and its a good thing he did. The village where we were was shelled and overrun later by Turkish troops."

The two families borrowed a bed sheet and painted a large "USA" on it with shoe polish. Draping the sign over the roof of the car, they drove to Morthou, nervously scanning the skies for Turkish planes. They remained with Mr. Sophoclides' relatives in Morthou for three days, listening to a special radio wavelength for evacuation news and seeing several bombings in nearby places, but not undergoing any bombings themselves.

Bill McDougall, husband of the Sophoclides' oldest daughter Diane, told the Freeman that the U.S. State Department had been of little or no help in getting word of the fate of the family. According to Mrs. Sophoclides, they weren't much help on Cyprus either.

"We called the Embassy in Nicosia before leaving Kyrenia," Mrs. Sophoclides said. "About all they could do was advise us to use our own ingenuity. We called them several times from Morthou to see if we could send a cable back home, but were told that the staff was too busy to handle personal messages."

An English girl staying in a home nearby hired a taxi to take her to a British air base in the mountains and the returning taxi driver said that the base was secure and calm. Bolstered by an encouraging talk with the British High Commissioner after again failing to get any help from U.S. officials, they hired the taxi and were driven to the air base themselves, from where they were evacuated by helicopter to the British naval base on Akrotiri Bay, on the south coast of Cyprus.

British naval personnel examined their passports, fed them, and had them aboard a military jet transport plane just five hours later, bound for England.

At 3:30 a.m. on the day the cease-fire went into effect on Cyprus, they landed at a military air base near London. They were given a hot meal, sleeping accomodations for the rest of the night, and a bus trip next morning to the railroad station, from where they traveled to London to make their own arrangements for a flight back home.

Alexis has visited Cyprus several times before and describes it as "a beautiful place," but her most recent visit is probably the one she will remember longest.

She confesses to being "really scared" by the bombings and strafings. "I'm just glad to be back," she said as she prepared to leave for New Jersey and another seashore vacation.

'Oil Conspiracy' Charged... Savago Seeks State Suit

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

County Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago has charged major oil companies with conspiracy in raising the price of oil and gasoline and wants the state attorney general to commence a class action suit to recover damages.

Charging that the alleged "fuel crisis" was nothing more than a "conspiracy to control the price and supply of oil and gasoline," Savago has petitioned Attorney General Louis Lefkowitz to commence a class action suit against those major oil companies and their "excessive prices."

His petition will be voted on at the Aug. 8 meeting of the County Legislature where unanimous approval is expected.

Savago, reached at his home in New Paltz, said his petition would be on behalf of all local governments in the state. Several other counties in the state have forwarded similar petitions of Lefkowitz.

"There is no way to assess the cost accurately at this time," Savago told the Freeman, "but we expect it will be considerable. Price increases of 40 per cent in fuel are not uncommon," Savago added.

Savago said that conservation methods—"reduced use of lighting, car pools, things like that"—have helped somewhat but that the county budget will go over in certain categories. "I doubt if we'll run a deficit this year," he added.

Also on the agenda for the legislators when they meet next Thursday are two resolutions on reapportionment. One, from Savago and Majority Leader Ernest Gardner (R-Dist. 5), calls for the appointment of a committee to study the matter. The other, from Louis Klein (D-Dist. 6), and Glen Debrosky (R-Dist. 6), asks for a five-member committee with a public hearing by Sept. 5 on a plan.

Legislators are now serving under a reapportionment plan that was defeated by the voters last fall but that will be in effect until Dec. 31, 1975. However, legislators will run on a new plan next year which will have to be approved by next spring in order to meet political calendar deadlines.

Also on tap will be final approval of a $6,000 pay increase for county judges. The increase is mandated by the state and will raise the jurists' salaries to $37,500 per year.

Agriculture District No. 7, a total of 5,871 acres in Shawangunk-Gardiner, will be approved. The land is located on the east side of the Wallkill River.

There will be a public hearing on Ulster County Comunity College's 1974-1975 budget which totals $4.1 million. The hearing will be held at 3 p.m. next Thursday. It is expected the budget will be approved at the evening session of the legislature.

RIVER CLEANUP—Members of a pollution control team suck up several inches of diesel fuel oil confined by a floating boom in the Hudson River near Albany. About 500,000 gallons of the oil was spilled when a tank overflowed while a barge was being emptied, 25,000 of which floated free and into the river. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

150-Yard Swim in Esopus

Saugerties Youth, 15, Drowns

By MATT SPIRENG

SAUGERTIES

A 15-year-old Saugerties youth drowned late Wednesday afternoon in the Esopus Creek as he was unable to complete the last 25 feet to shore during an attempted 150-yard swim with six teenage companions, according to Saugerties Village Police.

The dead boy was identified as David James Myers of 43 Elm Street, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenford L. Myers.

A 14-year-old who was swimming with Myers attempted to save him but was pulled under by the drowning youth and lost his grip on his friend.

The youth's body was recovered from approximately 21 feet of water by state police scuba divers more than three hours after he disappeared beneath the surface at about 3:30 p.m. in an area of the Esopus Creek called the point, near Washburn Terrace.

Village Police said the seven teenagers, ranging in age from 13 to 16 were attempting to swim across the creek and back when the drowning occurred. The width of creek at that point was estimated at 75 yards.

Four of the youths had made it to shore, and Myers was bringing up the rear when he called out to the two youths who remained in the water ahead of him that he was getting tired and didn't think he could make it to shore, police said they were told.

Myers was told to turn on his back and attempt to float to shore, but when the youths in the water turned to him to give aid he was already going under. Saugerties Village Police reported.

James Hackett, 14, of 60 Ulster Avenue, Saugerties swam to Myers' aid, but was pulled under during the youth's struggles. Myers slipped from his grasp when Hackett surfaced he was unable to find the 15-year-old, police said.

Authorities were called, and Saugerties Village Police and Saugerties Ambulance Service responded. After the initial effort to find the youth proved fruitless, the Saugerties Fire Department and Town Police and State Police were called in to give assistance.

Civilian skin divers and state police skin divers began an intensive search for the youth's body.

At about 8:05 p. m. State Police Troop F skin divers Trooper A. G. Parker and Trooper M. Mizko located the body in about 21 feet of water and brought it to the surface.

Coroner Richard M. Buono, who was at the scene during the search, pronounced the youth dead and ordered his body removed to the County Morgue in Kingston.

A ruling of accidental death due to drowning was issued today by the coroner.

The remaining five youths who witnessed the drowning were identified by authorities as Kevin Campbell, 16 of 26 Ulster Avenue; Michael Martin, 13, of 44 Lafayette Street; Leonard Whittaker, 14, of 17 Myer Lane; Charles Panchak, 15, of 82 Ulster Avenue; and James Mackey, 15, of 141 Washington Avenue, all of Saugerties.

Recaptured in Poughkeepsie

(UPI) — Police have in custody today a 19-year-old New York City youth convicted in a triple murder, who escaped Wednesday from a Poughkeepsie hospital where he had been taken for treatment of an ear injury.

Town of Poughkeepsie police received a telephone call Wednesday night from the owner of the Hudson Valley Limousine Service who said a man answering the description of the escape was standing in his doorway.

Ronald Finkelstein, 19, of Brooklyn offered no resistance and was taken by state police back to Matteawan State Hospital at Beacon. He was not armed.

He was arrested about one block from St. Francis Hospital, where correction officers had taken Finkelstein. He broke free and eluded authorities most of the evening.

All available police in the Poughkeepsie area, including state police helicopters, were called in.

Finkelstein had been convicted Nov. 14, 1973 of three counts of murder and was committed on April 10 of this year to Matteawan.

He was never sentenced, however, because the judge said the youth was not able to understand the conviction. Three standing warrants are on file at Matteawan, to return him for sentencing when staff psychologists believe he is ready.

Finkelstein suffered a punctured eardrum and was accompanied by two corrections officers to the hospital. He asked to use a bathroom, and moments later burst through the door, surprised the guards and bolted down a hallway.

Detective James Gallagher of Queens, who arrested Finkelstein Aug. 24, 1972, three days after the murders, called him "a dangerous kid." and added, "he would do anything. Naturally we don't want a guy like this out on the street."

Finkelstein shot and killed Joseph Pegacaro, 19, Steve Paoli, 19, and Frank Demeri, 17, at the North Broad Channel Beach area in Rockaway. Police said he unloaded a full clip from a .32 caliber automatic pistol into the three, reloaded the weapon and fled.

Finkelstein, described as AWOL from the Army at the time of the murders, was also wanted for burglary and larceny in Brooklyn.

Compromise Over Busing Dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) — A long dispute over busing of school children has ended in compromise, and a $25 billion aid to education bill is on its way to President Nixon today.

The House passed the revised measure Wednesday, 328 to 83, turning back last-ditch efforts by antibusing forces to precipitate still another confrontation with the Senate.

The House previously had voted three times to instruct its conferees to stand firm on a provision that would practically prohibit busing past the next-nearest school and allow reopening of court cases in which busing had been ordered.

The compromise finally adopted permits courts to order busing when such measures are needed to protect the constitutional rights of minority children. The reopener provision was deleted.

Rep. Albert H. Quie, R-Minn., senior Republican member of the House Education and Labor Committee, said he expects Nixon to sign the bill.

Last week's Supreme Court decision striking down a controversial Detroit across-boundaries busing order apparently helped put the compromise over.

The bill authorizes funds for the next two to four years for various programs, some dependent on future appropriations legislation.

Aftermath of Judiciary Hearings

Key Nixon Aides Talking Impeachment

WASHINGTON (U P I) — Some of President Nixon's key aides are saying privately for the first time that he is likely to be impeached by the House and face a Senate trial.

Their pessimistic assessment is the result of a change in atittudes which they have observed among House members in the aftermath of six days of televised House Judiciary Committee impeachment hearings.

"A regrouping is going on," said one White House official. He indicated Nixon has not yet devised a concrete new strategy to shore up his position.

Nixon scheduled a meeting with his economic advisors today.

Presidential aides were engaged in meetings to evaluate Nixon's chances of overcoming the impeachment panel's allegations of involvment in the Watergate cover-up, abuse of presidential powers and defiance of subpoenas.

Press secretary Ronald Ziegler has been unavailable to reporters for the last three days.

Other aides assumed a low profile, and when a television network asked for a White House spokesman to take the President's side in a half-hour special report on impeachment the other night, none accepted.

White House speech writer Patrick J. Buchanan said Wednesday that Nixon has "under active consideration" a proposal to ask the House to impeach him without debate in order to move on to a speedy Senate trial.

But the idea quickly was shot down by congressmen from both sides of the aisle who branded it as "offensive" and a "cop-out."

Buchanan also told reporters there has been "serious slippage" in the line-up of Nixon's supporters in the House.

Nixon himself has remained silent on the subject and basically in seclusion since his return to the White House from a 16-day stay in California.

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald Warren said there were no plans for the President to take his case to the American people in a television broadcast at this time.

Nixon has been engrossed in the tiring chore of listening to the 44 remaining taped Watergate conversation which must be surrendered to U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica, some of them on Friday.

Warren declined Wednesday to reaffirm a brief statement he had made last Saturday in San Clemente, Calif., in which he had said: "We remain absolutely confident that the House will not vote to impeach the President."

Reporters tried in several ways but they could not get Warren to repeat the statement.

All he would say was that "there is no change in our confidence in the constitutional process and there is no change in our confidence in the facts of the matter . . . and the facts of the matter do not support the charges."

Five Minute Tape Gap Revealed

WASHINGTON (U P I) — White House lawyers have revealed there is a gap of more than five minutes on a Watergate tape surrendered by President Nixon after a bitter court battle to keep the tapes secret.

Existence of the gap was disclosed Wednesday by presidential defense attorney James D. St. Clair, who at the same time asked U.S. District Court to keep another 48 minutes of presidential conversations out of the hands of Watergate prosecutors on grounds of executive privilege.

He said the gap was discovered in the tape of a meeting Nixon had on April 17, 1973, with key aides H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman — one of 20 tapes Nixon surrendered to Judge John J. Sirica Tuesday under terms of last week's Supreme Court order.

"Judging from the notations on the tape boxes, the tape ran out and was replaced in the midst of this conversation," St. Clair told Sirica in a written analysis. "A timing of the two segments indicates that approximately 5 minutes and 12 seconds of conversation were never recorded."

Prosecutors had noted an apparent gap by scanning notations on the tape boxes when they were delivered to court. St. Clair said then he did not think anything was missing but his subsequent check proved the prosecutors right.

St. Clair's index and analysis was submitted to describe the 20 tapes surrendered to Sirica, who now will listen to them and decide which portions Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski should have for the Watergate cover-up trial due to start Sept. 9.

Though the White House included all 20 conversations in the edited transcripts it released April 30, the transcript of the April 17 meeting gives no indication that any of the conversation is missing.

It was the third major disclosure of problems with subpoenaed White House tapes.

Last fall, after another losing court battle to keep tapes secret, the White House said two sought-after conversations never were recorded and a third had an 18½ minute gap.

Nixon is to surrender 44 other tapes for Sirica's review promptly. His lawyers are to give the judge a progress report on Friday.

In his analysis, St. Clair lodged Nixon's formal claim of executive privilege for 23 segments on 10 of the surrendered tapes totaling 48 minutes and 18 seconds.

Sirica must rule on all of Nixon's assertions of privilege. Last fall he did uphold several such claims and did not pass on the disputed segments to Jaworski.

Former Milk Co-Op Official Pleads Guilty to Conspiracy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Watergate special prosecutor has obtained the testimony of the former general manager of the country's largest milk co-op for use in its bribery case against former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally Jr.

The former official, Harold S. Nelson, 56, San Antonio, Tex., pleaded guilty Wednesday to a single count of conspiracy in a series of allegedly illegal corporate campaign gifts to both Republicans and Democrats involving an alleged $10,000 bribe to Connally.

Nelson was the second former official of the Associated Milk Producers, Inc., and the sixth person to be charged in one week in so-called "milk fund" cases. It was believed other charges were imminent.

In exchange for accepting a plea of guilty to a single count, Deputy Special Prosecutor Henry S. Ruth Jr. told Nelson he "may be required to testify as a witness called by the United States in matters where he may have relevent information."

Ruth, however, specified Nelson did not receive immunity for possible violations growing out of the 1971 price support decision.

Chief U.S. District Court Judge George L. Hart Jr. released Nelson to his attorney pending a probationary report. The charge, a felony, carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $4,000 fine.

The eight-page information, or report, was filed by Ruth in lieu of a grand jury indictment.

It charged that Nelson authorized former AMPI lawyer Jake Jacobsen to give Connally $10,000 for Connally's assistance in obtaining a 1971 increase in the federal price support for raw milk.

Connally and Jacobsen, another Texan, were indicted two days ago in connection with the alleged bribe.

The information also named David L. Parr, former AMPI special counsel, who pleaded guilty last week; Bob A. Lilly, Nelson's former assistant; Robert O. Isham, former AMPI comptroller; Stewart H. Russell, former AMPI lawyer, and Jacobsen as unindicted coconspirators.

The information charged AMPI concealed its corporate campaign gifts by reimbursing the individual donors under the guise of paying them for legal fees.

The information charged that Nelson caused:

—$63,500 to go to a fund dinner for then-Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey during the 1968 presidential campaign.

Editor's Notebook

P. BARRECCHIA

Strangely enough, the ancient legend of Rip Van Winkle may be having a second showing here in the Hudson Valley. It could be said that the body public is again enjoying a sound and peaceful sleep in some sylvan retreat while an almost unprecedented episode in American history is acted out in tableau down in Washington.

One letter to the editor published recently stated that these are the times that try men's souls, albeit the truth of that—these are also the times that elevate some men above the base that normally is a way of life. The example that comes to mind is the behavior in conscience that has been exhibited by many Republicans on the House Judiciary Committee.

Partisanship in a critical period such as this must be deplored and the solid bloc voting of the Democratic members of the panel undoubtedly gave rise to grave concern as to the impartiality of this group. Anti-Nixonism is so deeply imbued into so many of our illiberal liberals that if the man stopped to help an aging grandmother cross the street his actions would immediately be suspect.

So to draw the fine line between public duty and allegiance to the GOP was the tightrope task of committee members such as Hamilton Fish Jr., and most of them accomplished this with judiciousness and dignity. Fish, the scion of a Hudson Valley tradition and the son of conservatism incarnate, has revealed he was deeply disturbed when he learned from the evidence of the Presiden't role in the Watergate coverup. Yet it must have been a healthy disturbance since it prodded him to react against his tradition, against some sentiment in his voting district and possibly against his own private persuasions.

Other committee Republicans also faced up to their duty, as loathsome as it must have been to them. Republican Tom Railsback of Illinois when queried said he would "vote to impeach any president who I thought was subverting the government."

Stones in the mail and verbal brickbats are currently an accepted lot for these men. Cries of "betraval" are heard in the district—the Sleepy Hollow legend lives on cloaked in the feeling that if we all go to sleep the whole unpleasantness might just pass away.

But the issue, as perceived by some of the more moderate committee Republicans, will not just pass away since it is wrapped around the core of our government. If the President is guilty of wrongdoing; if he did in fact abuse the power of the office, if he did act as though he and his aides were above the law then he must answer to the American people.

That is the reason for the investigation and the consequent vote for articles of impeachment. It will soon be the turn of the full House of Representatives to determine if there is sufficient validity in the charges of obstruction, abuse of power and defiance to constitute a charge of high crimes and misdemeanor and vote a bill of impeachment which would be followed by a trial in the Senate.

That such an episode is exceptionally unfortunate cannot be denied. That the president was bullheaded enough to paint himself into such a corner is also unfortunate. But simply crying witchhunt and partisan persecution is not enough. This is a time of constitutional crisis, and simply hoping the whole thing will dissipate like a bad dream is not the answer.

End Starvation ...Kill Your Pet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If anti-hunger crusaders want Americans to cut their living standards to save grain for hungry people abroad, they might start by slaughtering half the country's 62 million pet dogs, cats and horses, Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz suggested Wednesday.

Butz, in a speech prepared for delivery to the American Society of Animal Science at nearby College Park, Md., quickly emphasized he was not advocating mass killing of pets. He said farmers will be able to meet world food needs without following suggestions that Americans should eat less meat in order to save grain for hungary people abroad.

Earlier, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D. Minn., had said Americans might consider eating one less hamburger a week so the grain fed to cattle could be available to combat starvation threats abroad.

Butz, denouncing the idea as "sheer demagogic nonsense," said he wondered if proponents of the idea were serious.

"If so, they could make the first onslaught on this noble goal by reducing our dog and cat population by 50 per cent, which likewise would suddenly release more grain for the world . . . roughly speaking, we have 32 million dogs and 22 million cats. It takes a lot of food—a lot of grain products—to keep that many animals alive, sleek and contented," Butz said.

The farm official said grain could be saved, also, by cutting the population of eight million horses, mules and asses "which no longer pull the plow or dray."

"Next time I hear that cry to cut back on hamburgers, I am going to ask the speaker—how many dogs are there on your block?" he said.

Woman Sues Doctor Over Medical Report

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — A woman, maintaining her fiance canceled their wedding because of a false medical report that she had syphilis, has brought a $500,000 lawsuit against a doctor.

Patricia Jahn of Canton filed the suit Monday in Superior Court against Dr. Owen Murphy of Simsbury.

Murphy said the laboratory report he got from Hartford Hospital was smudged and there was "an optical error on my part," but he said the romance would have ended without his mistake.

"Evidently they were fighting between themselves," Murphy said.

Miss Jahn's suit said she was given the standard pre-marriage blood test at the hospital and the result was returned to Murphy, who is Simsbury's director of health.

Murphy said he informed the fiance, Peter Caruso, of the result because he did not know how to contact Miss Jahn. Murphy said he had thought then that the couple already had married.

The suit said that Murphy told Caruso in a note that his fiancee had syphilis and later told him she had the disease for five years. The suit also said Murphy filed reports with various officials, further damaging Miss Jahn's reputation.

Midwest Drought Continues

By United Press International

Midwest pastureland lay brown and barren today and heat-dried corn rattled in the winds in what could be the worst drought since the Dust Bowl days of the 1930s. Ranchers rushed to market to take a loss on their cattle.

"There's been some scattered rain, but it's been real scattered. I didn't get a drop and day by day it's getting real critical," said John Regier, a Weatherford, Okla., cattleman.

"The grass is getting real short and brown, and some people are getting hurt bad," he said.

Cattle-killing anthrax also has struck the area. The drought-triggered disease has been killing cattle from Texas to the Dakotas.

"I haven't had any of that yet," Regier said, "but about eight miles from here a guy lost 10 cows. We're checking the cattle about twice a day for anthrax."

Drought and disease have been driving stockmen to market in hopes of getting what they can —even if it means a loss —while the cattle is still in salable condition.

"There was the largest run ever for a Wednesday in Oklahoma City," Regier said. "The ranchers are trying to get rid of their cows and calves, and they're taking a loss. You can hardly sell them."

Farmers in several parts of the Corn Belt gave up hope of harvesting a crop and began chopping what corn was left for silage. Others warned that if substantial rains do not come soon, the crops will be lost.

Farmers in Iowa and Ohio have set aside parts of their church services to pray for rain, but no answer appears to be forthcoming.

The National Weather Service outlook for August calls for no significant rainfall in the drought areas.

Nebraska Governor J. James Exon already has declared the state a drought disaster area, noting that $1 billion would be a conservative estimate of damage inflicted by the drought.

Texas reports $2 billion in crop losses and Kansas another $1 billion.

The drought stretches as far as Ohio, where experts fear one third of the corn and soybean crops will wither under the searing sun.

'Missing' Securities Found

NEW YORK (AP) — Investigators say almost $5.4 million in securities reported "missing" from a city vault apparently could not be found because of sloppy bookkeeping in the office of Mayor Abraham D. Beame, who was comptroller at the time.

Manhattan Dist. Atty. Richard H. Kuh and city Investigation Commissioner Nicholas Scoppetta said Wednesday that they led a task force that traced all but $84,001 of the securities after a probe of only a few days.

"If we wanted to find it, we had to look in the most obvious place," said Kuh.

That was not in the ancient books audited by the S.D. Leidesdorf & Co. accounting firm during an audit commissioned by present Comptroller Harrison J. Goldin.

Two weeks ago Goldin said the audit showed the $5.4 million "discrepancy," touching off an exchange of accusations between Beame and his successor as comptroller, Goldin.

But the Kuh-Scoppetta task force questioned employes working in and around the vault in the Municipal Building and weaved its way through a maze of records to reconstruct the actual flow of the securities in and out of the vault.

After the first day of their probe, the investigators identified $4,092,000 of the securities as short-term U.S. Treasury notes. They were properly redeemed at maturity, but the transactions were apparently not entered in the records seen by the Leidesdorf firm.

Similarly, the task force found receipts and other documents that identified most of the remaining $1,335,008 as collateral deposits from contractors, banks and companies holding city franchises.

Beame said he was "very pleased" by the task force report.

A spokesman for Goldin, who is vacationing in Europe, said the comptroller's office was reassured by the report, but "unable to reach a conclusion of its own" until a second audit report is completed.

Kuh and Scoppetta said there appeared to be no criminality involved in the "missing" funds.

But Scoppetta emphasized that investigations were continuing to determine the whereabouts of the remaining $84,001 in securities, as well as probes of two other discrepancies in the comptroller's books reported by Goldin—a $45-million surplus in city bank accounts and a $309,000 shortage in pension funds.

Wilson to Make New Montreal Run

ALBANY, N. Y. (UPI) — Gov. Malcolm Wilson and other officials will be onboard the first run restoring train service between Albany and Montreal Monday.

In making the announcement Wednesday, Wilson's office said the governor will board the New York-Montreal run at 11:20 a.m. when the Amtrak train stops at the Rensselaer station across the Hudson River from Albany.

There will be a brief ribbon cutting ceremony at the Rensselaer station before the train continues north on the first passenger run to Montreal since 1971 when the service was discontinued by the Delaware and Hudson Railroad.

Named the "Adirondack," the service is being launched under funds provided by the $30 million essential rail services preservation fund approved by the 1974 legislature.

The state will pay two-thirds of any operating deficits and Amtrak will pay the remaining deficit. The service will operate from Albany north on the Delaware and Hudson tracks.

The inaugural run will begin at 8:30 a.m. at Grand Central Station in New York City as part of the regularly scheduled Empire service. It will make regular stops at Harmon, Poughkeepsie, Rhinecliff and Hudson before arriving at Rensselaer, where a dome car will be attached.

The opening day schedule calls for stops at Saratoga Springs at 12:50 p.m.; Fort Edward at 1:35 p.m.; Whitehall at 2:15 p.m.; Fort Ticonderoga at 3 p.m.; Westport at 3:50 p.m.; Plattsburgh at 5 p.m. and Rouses Point at 6:05 p.m. The train will arrive in Montreal at 7:45 p.m.

Regularly scheduled service will begin Tuesday under a different timetable and will include stops in Watervliet and Mechanicville. There will be two trains daily — one in each direction.

Chief Served Court Papers

By United Press International

Court papers have been served on the chief of the Onondaga Indians in one of several disputes involving Indians and their reservations in upstate New York.

The papers, served Wednesday by Onondaga County sheriff's deputies on Chief Leon Shenandowah, require the Onondaga Council of Chiefs to appear in State Supreme Court in Syracuse Aug. 5.

They must offer reasons why they should not be barred from preventing non-indians from returning to their reservation homes.

In addition to the show cause order, the Indians were also served with a temporary restraining order preventing the chiefs from taking action against persons evicted from the reservation in Nedrow last week.

In Malone, Franklin County Court Judge Ellsworth N. Lawrence has ordered Benjamin Harris, 55, a non-Mohawk, to leave the St. Regis Reservation. He ordered District Attorney Owens Grogan to give Harris an order giving him 10 days to leave the reservation where he has lived since 1970.

Indians on a small reservation in the city of Oneida have gone to U.S. District Court in Utica to evict several white landowners near their property. The Oneidas also want rents from areas in Madison and Oneida counties, claiming the lands were taken from them illegally.

Wagner Supporting Carey for Governor

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Mayor Robert F. Wagner has endorsed Rep. Hugh Carey as a gubernatorial candidate free of obligations to "bosses."

Howard J. Samuels, Carey's opponent in the Democratic primary, promptly tried to dismiss the move as the payment of a political debt left over from 1969, when Carey endorsed Wagner in a mayoral primary. Wagner lost that year, as did Carey, who was then seeking nomination to a city council seat.

On Wednesday, Wagner called a news conference with Carey and pronounced the congressman "free of boss ties and obligations."

Asked if Samuels had such obligations and ties, Wagner answered "Yes."

Wagner also said Carey was more likely than Samuels to be able to defeat Republican Gov. Malcolm Wilson in November.

Police Looking For 'Ted'

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI) — Police in the state of Washington, investigating the kidnaping of six coeds during the past six months, are looking into a possible connection in the case Syracuse University coed Karen Levy, who has been missing for two years.

Authorities said that witnesses to two of the West Coast incidents gave police enough information to put together a composite drawing of a man, known only as "Ted."

The description was almost identical to composites of "Billy Lacey," wanted in connection with Miss Levy's disappearance.

The missing Syracuse University freshman, from Cherry Hill, N.J., was 18 when, in November 1972, she put a notice on a college ride board asking for transportation to Monmouth, N.J., to visit her boyfriend, police said.

Investigation disclosed that Miss Levy received a call from a man identifying himself as Bill Lacey and telling her he was in Syracuse on business and would be driving to New Jersey. He told her he had a small car and not to take much luggage.

With two friends, Miss Levy went to meet the man at the Upstate Medical Center, where he said he was doing business.

Police said the friends saw her meet a man and walk into a parking lot with him. They said they never saw the pair get into any vehicle.

When Miss Levy did not arrive in New Jersey, her parents notified police.

Galloping Bureaucracy

Big government can get too nosy—and officiously stuffy for its own good at times and this seems to be the case regarding the rabbit painting atop the barn roof at Hidden Valley.

In their zeal to avoid scenic pollution, Thruway authorities have decreed that no sign carrying a commercial message be placed nearer than 660 feet from the superhighway and in a former instance, Ms. Mickey Duncan the titian-haired firebrand who owns the camping grounds resort once before took on the authority and lost. That was in 1972 when a large legend depicting the undoubted attributes of the place was removed under orders.

But this is a horse, or at least a bunny, of a different color. A resident artist, one David MacClandish, felt the urge to turn his talents loose on something larger than the conventional canvasses, so with the permission of Ms. Duncan he ups to the top of the stable roof and proceeds to enhance the scenery with this very much larger than life painting of a white bunny. Cute, no?

Well, apparently the bureaucrats at the Thruway Authority didn't think so as they promptly ordered Ms. Duncan to have the offending rabbit eradicated. Naturally, the lady rightfully refused, charging an invasion of her rights by the authority since no advertising accompanied the painting. And right she is, so we wish her all the luck in her battle against another instance of galloping bureaucracy.

Vets in Economic Squeeze

Congress and the administration have followed standard political practices of blaming each other for the economic squeeze that confronts veterans of the Vietnam war.

It seems that neither deserves commendation for the delay which leaves these veterans lagging far behind their counterparts of World War II and Korea in GI benefits.

A comprehensive education benefits bill is proposed in the Senate, giving just if belated recognition to the plight of Vietnam returnees who can't find employment because of lack of education and can't get education because costs are so much higher than their $1,980 annual allowance.

The legislation would raise benefits to a level closer to the aid available to veterans of other wars.

It is true that the federal government must practice austerity, but the government also must share in the responsibility of the plight of the men who served during the Vietnam war.

If the expressions of tribute from "a grateful nation" are to be more than rhetoric, the increase for these veterans is imperative.

Disagreement over our involvement has no bearing on the plight of the young men who fought in Vietnam — most not by choice. They deserve and should have the same consideration a grateful nation has accorded its fighting men in the past.

Anti-Mosquito Weapon

Another advance in biological, rather than chemical, control of pests is heralded by a report from Dr. Samuel Singer of Western Illinois University. He offers a promising new weapon against mosquitoes: a type of bacteria which, introduced into lakes and ponds and other bodies of water where mosquitoes breed, would kill their larvae by the millions.

Such a means of decimating mosquito populations has great significance in the fight against malaria and other diseases transmitted by these insects. It also has another kind of importance; if it proves successful it should virtually eliminate the need to use DDT or other chemicals for this purpose. Dr. Singer's discovery is an impressive addition to the arsenal of insect control.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Watergate Evidence Was Tampered

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — There no longer can be any doubt that the White House has tampered with Watergate evidence. Not only tapes but documents have been altered by someone inside the White House.

Furthermore, our White House sources tell us that the additional 64 conversations, which the Supreme Court unanimously ordered President Nixon to turn over to Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski, contain gaps, distortions and unintelligible passages.

Many of the distortions are caused by extraneous sounds, such as clanking cups, thumping feet and even martial music filtering into the Oval Office from the White House grounds. But our sources say that some of the unexplained gaps appear to have been caused by deliberate tampering.

The suppressed tapes had been in the President's personal custody until the Supreme Court order. Then they were entrusted to the Secret Service to transcribe.

Our sources have also furnished us with the astonishing details about a memo that clearly was doctored by the White House. This was written on Jan. 8, 1970, by former presidential aide Alexander Butterfield.

It dealt with the tapped telephone conversation of Morton Halperin, a former national security aide, who spoke on the phone about helping ex-Secretary of Defense Clark Clifford prepare a series of articles for Life magazine against the Vietnam War.

The tapped conversation was reported to the White House by the late FBI chief, J. Edgar Hoover, on Dec. 29, 1969. H. R. Haldeman, then the White House staff chief, passed Hoover's wiretap report to Jeb Magruder, with instructions to prepare a "game plan" to counter the Clifford articles.

Magruder sought suggestions from Butterfield, who gave his views in the Jan. 8, 1970, memo. He stressed that "Al Haig can get you squared away on at least a preliminary scheme. We can build from there." Haig was then Henry Kissinger's deputy but is now Haldeman's successor as staff chief.

This memo is significant, because it proves that the wiretaps were used for political purposes. All along, the White House has been claiming that the wiretaps were ordered strictly to protect the national security.

The Butterfield memo was mysteriously altered, however, to make it appear that he had directed Magruder's operations against Clifford. The compromising reference to Haig was also deleted from the doctored memo.

Butterfield was hauled before the Watergate prosecutors early last January for questioning about the memo. He quickly spotted indications that it had been altered. He obtained access to his White House files and found several of his January 1970 memos missing, say our sources, including the doctored memo.

But unknown to the White House, Butterfield had kept copies of some of his papers and among them he found the January 8 memo as he had orginally written it. This proved the tampering beyond any doubt.

But the big mystery is still unsolved: who altered the memo? Haig might be a suspect, because the memo was changed to shift blame from him to Butterfield. But our sources doubt this, because the two men are close personal friends.

The strange gaps in the latest 64 tapes, meanwhile, will add to the frustration of the Watergate prosecutors who still haven't been able to identify who caused the famous 18½-minute gap in an earlier tape. This obliterated Haldeman's crucial first report to the President on the Watergate break-in on June 20, 1972.

One key source believes it was significant that the President himself listened to this tape on Sept. 29, 1973, at Camp David. His secretary, Rose Mary Woods, testified before the grand jury that the President donned earphones and pushed buttons, listening to parts of the June 20 tape, while she was transcribing it. She did not suggest however, that the President had altered the tape.

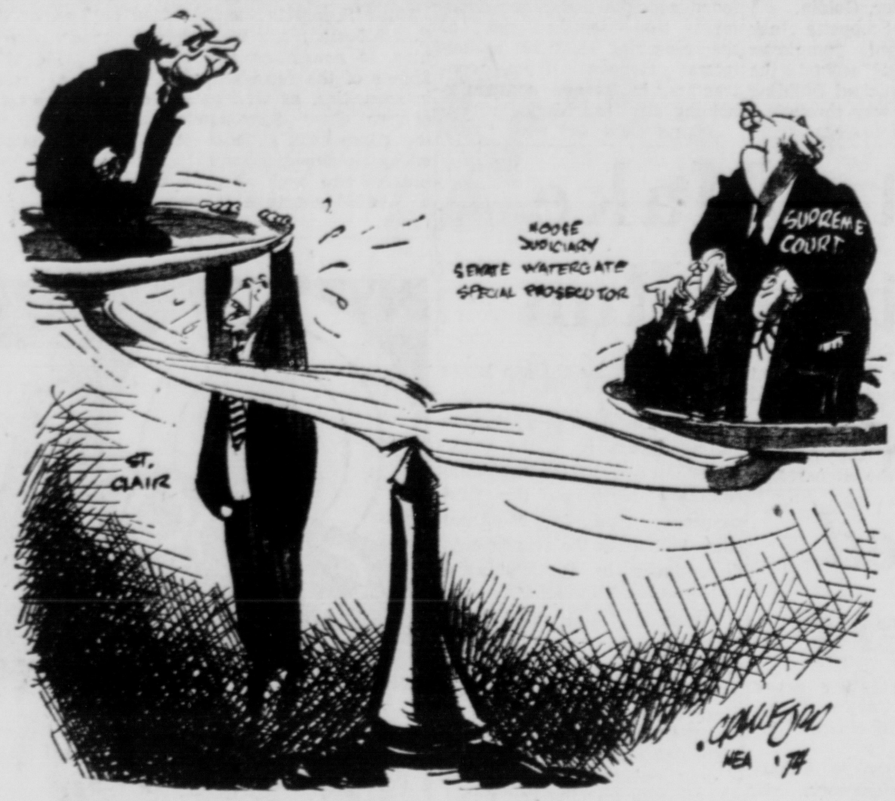

Another source pointed out that Asst. Atty. Gen. Henry Petersen, while he was in charge of the Watergate prosecution, reported to the President on April 15, 1973, that H. R. Haldeman was under investigation.

Ten days later, the President turned over several of the most crucial tapes not to Petersen who was conducting the investigation but to Haldeman who was under investigation.

The Watergate prosecutors still cannot pinpoint, however, who in the White House has been tampering with the tapes and documents.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: Pranksters recently slipped into Social and Rehabilitation Administrator James Dwight's executive bathroom and removed the lid to his commode. In its place, they installed a fire-engine red lid, emblazoned with the insignia of his favorite football team, the Southern California Trojans . . . Maj. Gerald L. Radcliff, president of a Pentagon antiques club, has written to Washington antique dealers requesting a discount for club members. The requests were mailed at the taxpayers' expense in franked envelopes stamped "official business" . . . Joe Gonzales, staff member who has been overseeing Treasury appropriations, has quietly joined the folks he used to regulate. He has accepted a $35,000-a-year job at the Treasury . . . Celebrated classical guitarist Jean-Pierre Jumez was horrified recently when one of his students showed him a new album of Jumez's recordings. The cover featured a hairy-legged model, without pants, strumming the guitar. The album, with its streaker-like guitar player, was issued by ABC Records without so much as asking Jumez whether his legs were hairy. The outraged classicist is taking the case to court.

"It's Getting Harder to Hold!"

On the Righ

Preparing the Senate

By William F. Buckley Jr.

Notwithstanding that the vote against Mr. Nixon by the Judiciary Committee was formally bipartisan, the cluster of nays was Republican, and everyone who speaks about the forthcoming event in the Senate speaks about "Republican stalwarts" or "Southern Democratic conservatives" as making up the hard core of "Nixon loyalists." It is of course too bad that, notwithstanding serious efforts, the question of whether Mr. Nixon should be impeached sifts up as a partisan affair. Young liberals (at one end of the antipodes) are in favor of conviction. Old conservatives (at the other end) are opposed.

And of course it is, in a profound sense, a political question rather than a juridical question. By this I mean that scholars equally learned could disagree endlessly on whether Mr. Nixon should have been impeached, though as the factual evidence mounts against him, the burden increases on the non-impeachment scholars.

But non-scholars, and non-lawyers (and they are a majority in the Senate) are in a position to say that their view of the country's interests transcends the kind of discussions about what was or was not said on March 21, 1973 in the Oval Office. I could understand, and respect, a senator who took the position that he would not vote to convict the President in the absence of the clear necessity to get him the hell out of the White House because his conduct showed that he had gone off his rocker, that he thought he was Napoleon, or FDR, or somebody. And I could respect a senator who takes the strictest view of the conduct of the White House and concludes that this is a historical opportunity to reorient the presidency toward the high road. Such a senator, upon being asked whether other presidents might not have been impeached if subjected to such rigorous standards, might reply: "Yes, and probably many of them should have been. On the other hand, if we had impeached Andrew Johnson, and maybe one or two since then, the problem of executive arrogance we suffer from now would not afflict us."

How proper is it for a senator to be influenced, in choosing among the alternative courses of action, by his own constituency? That is a truly vexing problem, because there is that enduring historical ambiguity in the role of the representative in a republic. The House managers of the impeachment proceedings don't have the burden of persuading the people of Nebraska that Nixon has committed an impeachable offense. They have the burden of persuading Senator Curtis and Senator Hruska that Nixon has committed an impeachable offense.

Let us assume — for purposes of illustration — that Senators Hruska and Curtis believed Nixon should be ousted, but that the voters of Nebraska were adamantly opposed to his ouster: how should they vote? There are two schools of thought, one of them plebiscitarian, the other the correct one. Nixon will be tried, and should be, by senators who have been elected not to transcribe the will of the people, but to serve the people acording to the senators' best lights. If the people then desire to punish a senator as they punished Senator Ross for casting the deciding vote for Andrew Johnson, that is the people's privilege, but it ought not to be confused with the privilege to put pressure on individual senators.

I should think it prudent, accordingly, for each senator to get up something of a personal statement concerning his own feelings on these questions and perhaps specifying procedures. He might say — for instance — that he will take into account what he believes to be the entire national question: are we bent on regicide of sorts? And can we know what the consequences of it are? And is there a Cromwell in the shadows?

And the senator might say: I have instructed my staff to keep from my desk any communication urging upon me a course of action. On the other hand, I have asked my staff to cull arguments unusually stated or arrestingly arranged which might help me to crystallize my position. But these arguments will be abstracted from letters, telegrams, telephone messages, etc., and put on my desk unattached to the name of the sender. When one sits down to make not only a judicial but a moral judgment, one takes special care, or should, that one has taken the spiritual exercises appropriate to equip one to play that role.

Nicholas Von Hoffman:

The Things We Tolerate

WASHINGTON (KFS) — Upon the fall of tyrants, bad rulers and vicious magistrates there is a traditional dancing in the streets and a joyful expectation that now, at last, a solution to the community's worst problems is at hand. Thus it was in Lisbon last month and in Athens last week.

When the Congressional mob seizes on Nixon, whom its members so much resemble, and pulls him out of the White House, will there be dancing in the streets here also? Assuredly, they will dance on Wall Street, but on the other thoroughfares of America we might serve ourselves better by practicing some form of contrite contemplation.

Not only did we elect the man, but we reelected him and did the same for the Congress, which with but a very few exceptions approved his appointment of a chain of knaves and crooks to the highest offices. More than that, we ourselves obeyed and supported the man through foul war and vile peace until even our dedicated obtuseness cracked under the weight of volumes of evidence.

So the question now is not whether Nixon is guilty but whether we are a nation of docile slobs. Nixon is not the creature of a Greek junta or a Portuguese coup, but of our own political culture.

This is an idea that John Ehrlichman fumbled with when he testified before the Ervin committee and made sneering reference to the indulgence and protection accorded to the alcoholic, skirt-chasing, shambling wrecks and incompetents among the ranks of those accusing him. His words evoked whispered titters about certain Members of Congress thought to be notoriously drunk and abed in the performance of their duties.

But no matter what form the abuse of office takes, many of us, perhaps most of us, have known what's going on for a long time. How can any adult American pretend to be shocked by revelations about campaign contributions? Where in Sam Hill did we think that money was coming from? From "the little people"? How many people do you personally know who have ever made a political contribution unless it was to get a paving contract? We knew, we've known all along.

But we didn't know better. Americans were referring to politicians as a bunch of crooks 75 years before Nixon, but we return them to office and obey them, for our part of the political culture is obedience and a suspicion of any serious criticism uttered outside the barroom.

It is not too much of an exaggeration to say that most of such serious criticism about the way we run our public affairs comes from half-maddened, incoherent criminals — late-adolescent psychos like the Symbionese Liberation Army or street muggers from the ghetto. The civil rights movement had to violate the law before it was taken serjously, as did the anti-war people. The ordinary political processes had no room to accommodate such questions until the people raising them broke and entered.

The rest of us support the state, pay our taxes, allow the government to assign us a serial number so it can trace our every activity, and give such loyalty that we feel vaguely guilty for not voting for the same wretches we privately are so contemptuous of. On public occasions we even go through the motions of praying for the scoundrels.

How did we, who think of ourselves as the most individualistic of people, come to take such an acquiescent role in our political culture?

Why are we so accepting?

Part of that answer may lie in our schools, where the child first meets the state. "Political socialization studies have found that children learned in elementary school that good citizenship meant obeying the law. In other words, the children rejected an active citizenship for one that was passive and obedient . . . their attitudes were like a woman I once heard who suggested that all people should be fingerprinted by the government. After all, she stated, if you are good and obey the law, it won't matter." The quote is from Joel H. Spring in "The Twelve Year Sentence, Radical Views of Compulsory Schooling" (edited by William S. Rickenbacker, Open Court Press, Chicago 1974).

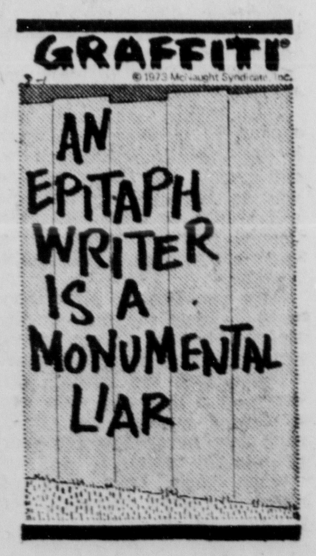

But speculation about what brought us to cashier our President will probably be brief and none too loud. He will be dismissed as an aberration, an evil piece of luck who was unmasked precisely because of the health of our political institutions. On the day they snip his buttons off and drum him out of the White House gates onto Pennsylvania Avenue and take away Ron Ziegler's parking permit, there will be much proclaiming that the system works, and we shall dance in the streets. But the real lesson will be learned by the next Nixon, who will have figured out how to finesse it.

$1,000 POSTAL AWARD — Harry Gregory, postmaster at the Roxbury Post Office in Delaware County, and his wife accept a $1,000 suggestion award from Westchester District Manager Thomas Donohue. On the right is Kingston Postmaster Oscar V. Newkirk. Roxbury mail is routed out of Kingston. Gregory's suggestion involved the labeling of packets of mail for routing to outlying post offices. Previously, they had been identified with a two by four inch slip of paper attached to the top letter. The identification tags often fell off with resultant delays. Gregory's suggestion was for the use of color coded stickers on the top letter. His idea will be put into practice throughout the 31,000 post offices in the country where postal officials expect considerable savings of money. (Freeman photo by Carey)

Liberal Tactics Anger Angell

POUGHKEEPSIE — Nicholas B. Angell, Democratic candidate for Congress in the 25th Congressional District was strongly critical this week of what he calls "arbitrary back-room procedures used by the leaders of the New York State Liberal Party to exclude him from consideration by the members of that party as their congressional candidate and which resulted in that party having no candidate at all.

Angell, although designated by the Liberal Party Committees of Ulster County and Westchester County and having filed the required number of petition signatures, was not given the consent of the New York State Liberal Party Executive Committee. Such consent was required for Angell to obtain the nomination or appear on the ballot in a primary because he is not an enrolled Liberal. James Horn, also not an enrolled Liberal, was designated by the Dutchess County Liberal Party, and did obtain the consent of the State Executive Committee even though he failed to file the required number of petition signatures.

Angell faces incumbent GOP Rep. Hamilton Fish Jr. in the November election.

"I believe the leaders of the Liberal Party have performed an undemocratic injustice to the members of their party in deciding to withhold their consent to my Liberal Party candidacy," Angell said. "I have the formal support of two of the three county committees involved and the grass-roots support evidenced by collection of the required number of signatures. With that evidence of support, the members should have been given a chance to choose between Horn and me in a primary, if Horn collected the necessary number of signatures or, should have been prvided a candidate of their own. The way this matter was handled shows that the Liberal Party may need a lesson or two in liberal, democratic procedures", Angell said.

"I believe that what's wrong with our political institutions is that power is concentrated in the hands of a few and the views of the people aren't represented. This recent action by the New York State Liberal Party is an unfortunate example of such form of unrepresentative politics.

Magnarella Hits Tax Relief

POUGHKEEPSIE — "Property tax relief is the most important issue in my campaign," Philip J. Magnarella, Democratic candidate for Assembly in the 99th District said today.

"Never before has there been such a threat of the loss of homes due to the tax burden, especially for those on fixed incomes and those of the low and lower-middle income groups." Magnarella said. He blames the state legislature for the homeowner's plight and explains that despite the fact that twenty-five states have eased the burden of property tax using the circuit-breaker concept in various forms, the New York State legislature did not even allow the circuit-breaker bill out of the Assembly.

In his 1972 campaign, Magnarella advocated a system similar to the circuit breaker concept, which places a limit on how much a homeowner pays in real property tax according to income and ability to pay, rather than the value of his property. "I am convinced that a tax system of this kind can work for New York and that the state is capable of implementing such a program without placing additional burdens on people of higher income," Magnarella said. He calls our current property tax burden "regressive" and explains that those who make less than $3,000 per year pay an average of 13 per cent of their total income in real property taxes, while those who make $25,000 to $50,000 pay only an average of 4.4 per cent.

Magnarella suggests that by applying the exisiting budgetary surplus and the funds generated by federal assistance to states which adopt legislation of this sort, New York State would not have to increase taxes. He insists, "There is no reason for the legislature to delay action on a tax relief program any longer."

Gilman Supports Pay Bill

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A bill providing for recomputation of military retirement pay, is being supported by Congressman Benjamin A. Gilman (R-26th Dist.)

The legislation authorizes recomputation of retirement pay based on active duty pay scales in effect as of Jan. 1, 1972.

The legislation affects retirees with disability ratings of 30 per cent or more, retirees over 60 years of age and younger retirees when they reach the age of 60.

Gilman joined in co-sponsoring the measure to recompute retirement pay "because the retirement benefits being paid to our former military men are not sufficient to enable them to meet the rising costs of living.

"This legislation is an attempt to bring their retirement pay more in line with increasing costs," Gilman said.

The administration supported recomputation of retirement pay in the last two years, but left it out of this year's budget proposal because the Congress had failed to enact it in the previous years, Gilman noted.

"We should not permit such an important issue to be delayed any longer. In adopting this measure we will be expressing our deep gratitude for the sacrifices and hardships borne by our fighting men," he concluded.

Deputies Charge Mother In Contraband Case

KINGSTON — A 48-year-old Town of Ulster woman whose son is being held in the Ulster County Jail has been charged with attempting to smuggle four marijuana cigarettes hidden in a package of underwear and cigarettes into the jail, sheriff's deputies said today.

A charge of promoting prison contraband in the second degree was lodged against Kathryn Brown of Kukuk Lane when she showed up in Ulster Town Court Wednesday to view a scheduled appearance of her son, Robert Brown, 16.

Deputies said Mrs. Brown appeared at the jail Tuesday night and gave a deputy a package which she said was for her son and two other inmates who had been arrested with him previously on charges of possession of a forged instrument and possession of stolen property.

Deputies said they searched the package, and allegedly found the marijuana in a portion marked for Robert Brown.

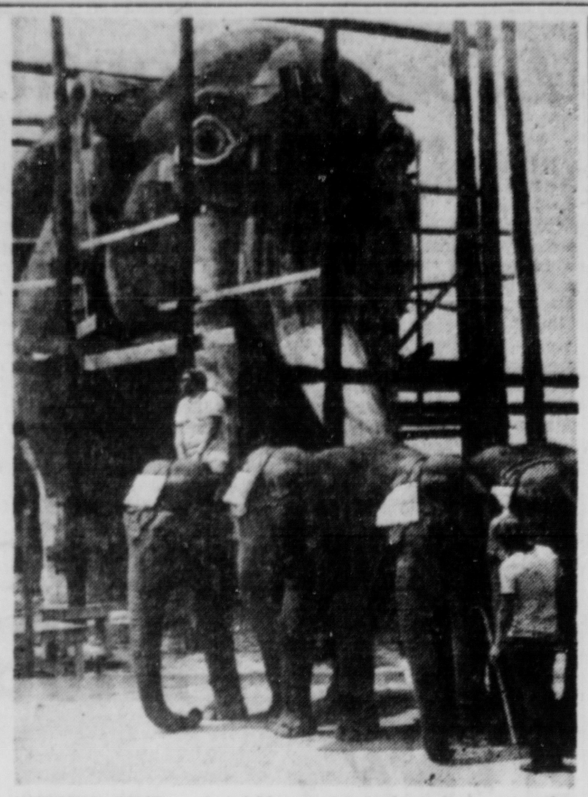

The illegal cigarettes were found when deputies noticed a pack of cigarettes had been opened and resealed. They opened it and allegedly found the four "joints."

Mrs. Brown was arraigned in Town of Ulster Court, where the charges were lodged Wednesday and was released in her own recognizance pending a later appearance in city court.

Mama Cass Services Scheduled on Friday

LONDON (UPI) — Funeral services for singer Mama Cass Elliot will be held at the end of the week in Los Angeles, her manager said Wednesday.

Allan Carr, manager of the rock star for years, was the only witness today at a formal identification hearing at Westminster Coroner's Court. He said the funeral services would be held Friday.

Coroner Gavin Thurston adjourned the hearing to Aug. 5 when final reports are expected on laboratory tests.

Miss Elliott, who gained widespread fame with a rock group called the Mamas and Papas, was found dead in her apartment Monday.

Her doctor said she apparently choked to death on a ham sandwich that she ate while very tired and sitting up in bed in an awkward position.

All deaths not due to natural causes are investigated as a matter of routine in London and laboratory tests were ordered to determine exactly what killed the singer.

Her body was to be flown to Hollywood today for burial Friday.

The Groman Mortuary, in charge of the arrangements, said funeral rites will be held at 10 a.m. Friday in the chapel at Hollywood Memorial Park, with burial in the adjoining Beth Olam Cemetery.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our wonderful mother and grandmother, Katherine Jansen who passed away 4 years ago August 1, 1970.

We miss her face, her pleasant smile,
We miss her more each day.
We'd love to hear her sing again
In her own sweet special way.

LOVING DAUGHTER and GRANDSON
GLADYS and BOB ADAMS

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my wife and children's mother, Theresa Schoonmaker, who died five years ago, August 1, 1969.

Life's great span is like a garden,
Where a thousand green things grow.
We live and work in this garden fair
Our stubborn row to hoe.
We coax and nurse our dreams along,
We welcome every bloom:
And when we think our garden's best
Cold winter wields his broom.
The flowers of the summer past
Our eyes will see no more,
But greener leaves and brighter blooms
Are well worth waiting for.
But tho the flowers are swept away
And snow lies white and deep,
Beneath a cold and frosty quilt
Next summer's roses sleep.

Big Three Formula...Lower Profits, Higher Prices

DETROIT (AP) — The nation's Big Three auto makers blame rapid inflation for trimming profits by $1.8 billion during the first half of 1974.

For the consumer, the problems of the mammoth firms will translate into price increases on new models in September.

Ford, which rounded out the first-half picture for the industry Wednesday with a reported 65 per cent earnings decline compared with the same period last year, says it plans an 8 per cent increase in wholesale prices for the opening of the 1975 model year.

The other makers plan similar increases, while leaving open the possibility that price tags will swell as the model year proceeds.

Taken together, the Big Three's first-half earnings were at their lowest level in 13 years.

Ford reported earnings of $291 million on sales of $11.4 billion, down from last year's $755 million profit on revenues of $12.4 billion.

General Motors last week listed first-half earnings off 73 per cent at $426 million on sales of $15.2 billion, compared with $1.6 billion profits on sales of $19.2 billion in 1973.

Chrysler's profits were $29.4 million on sales of $5.7 billion, down 85 per cent from profits of $198 million on sales of $6.1 billion in the first half of 1973.

Total Big Three earnings were $746 million on sales of $32.3 billion, down from profits of $2.55 billion on sales of $37.7 billion a year earlier.

Profits were down from 8.4 per cent of sales in the first half of 1973 to only 2.3 per cent this year, and makers say they have some ground to make up in pricing after a year first under federal controls and then a voluntary price-limiting agreement.

Ford chairman Henry Ford II and President Lee Iacocca vowed Wednesday to recoup lost ground in the coming months.

"This deterioration (in profits) primarily reflects our inability to recover through higher prices the cost increases we have been incurring," they said.

Despite controls and price-limiting agreements, prices of Ford, General Motors and Chrysler cars and trucks increased by record amounts in the last 12 months.

Average Ford prices rose $522 since the introduction of the 1974 models. GM products were up $534 and Chrysler makes were up $536.

"Price increases on 1974 models and an intensive cost reduction program initiated earlier this year offset only partially the effect of the higher costs," Ford executives said.

House Passes Gold Trade Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has passed a bill allowing Americans to buy, own and trade gold for the first time since the Depression.

The bill was sent to President Nixon, who is expected to sign it soon, according to a statement by Treasury Secretary William E. Simon.

The legislation passed the House late Wednesday with no debate on a voice vote after the House accepted a Senate amendment providing that no existing law could conflict with private ownership of gold.

The gold clause was included in a bill to extend for three years U.S. participation in the International Development Association. U.S. contributions totaling $1.5 billion over the three years are authorized for IDA, which makes loans to developing countries.

The measure provides that unless ordered earlier by Nixon, private ownership of gold shall be permissible after Dec. 31, 1974.

Private ownership of gold was ended by congressional decree at the request of President Franklin D. Roosevelt in his sweeping first-term legislative package to combat the Great Depression.

NEW YORK (AP) — Prices sagged again in the stock market today, continuing the week-long slide that left the major averages at their lowest points in nearly four years Wednesday.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down almost a point, and losers took a 3-2 lead over gainers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said the pessimism that dominated the market atmosphere focused on a broad range of worries, from impeachment and high interest rates to the potential inflationary impact of the continuing drought in the Midwest.

Two Arrested On Flying Drug Charges

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)— Sheriff's deputies arrested two men Tuesday at the Rochester-Monroe County Airport and confiscated more than 200 pounds of a substance investigators said was marijuana.

Daniel L. Patton, 26, and Randolph Strom, 25, both of Las Vegas, Nev., were charged with fifth-degree possession of a dangerous drug.

Investigators said the two men had just flown in from San Diego, Calif., and were arrested after claiming five suitcases at the baggage area and loading them into an automobile.

The suitcases contained the substance believed to be marijuana, investigators said.

Deputies said San Diego County narcotics agents worked with Monroe County investigators on the case.

Fund Drive For Church

ROSENDALE

Volunteers will be canvassing parishioners of St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church within the next several weeks to encourage greater Sunday offerings to help combat the effects of the inflationary spiral.

Rev. Gerard Bliss of St. Peter's said a meeting of church workers was held Wednesday night to discuss ways to conduct a more intensified fund gathering effort.

"We're very optimistic," said Rev. Bliss, "I'm sure our parishioners will respond generously."

A large part of the parish budget, Rev. Bliss noted, is channeled to St. Peter's School. But Rev. Bliss said he does not anticipate that inflation and the accompanying monetary woes will threaten the school's existance.

"The school will remain open, at least in the foreseeable future," he commented.

Area Police Arrest Trio

RHINEBECK

Three youths from the Anderson Correctional Home in Dutchess County were charged with burglary Wednesday night by state police after they allegedly entered the Astor Home in Rhinebeck.

Security personnel at the Astor Home contacted police, and the youths, who were not identified because of their ages, were arrested on the grounds, police said.

Following arraignment, they were released in the custody of school authorities pending further court appearances.

Highway Speeds Inching Up

NEW YORK (UPI) — The splurge of near-compliance that greeted the 55-mile-an hour traffic speed limit that became official nationally in January has given way to a general inching up of highway speeds and a general animosity between obeyers and disobeyers.

The acrimony appears most intense between the strict compliers and the truck drivers. The truckers have been sore at the law from the start because, they say, they can't operate at that speed and make money. The law-abiders are sore at truckers, and disobeyers generally, who give them a hard time for abiding.

Full gasoline tanks and an apparent slacking off the energy crisis are the surface reasons for the speed inch-up. But officials and drivers say they are encountering no such speeds as existed before.

The slowdown has reduced the accident rate remarkably, statistics of the New York State Police show — even with the recent speedup.

"There's no question that they're going faster because they're not the conservationists they were before," said one state trooper. "Let's face it, if a guy is able to get gas — if he can afford the stuff now — then he feels freer.

"But there are still no cases of people roaring through at 80 and 90 miles per hour, the way a good many did before. It's a psychological thing."

The voices of the obeyers in protest became loud enough in May, that State Police Superintendent William E. Kirwan put out a notice saying: "With the greater ease in obtaining gasoline, we have been getting complaints that many motorists are exceeding the speed limit outside the presence of troopers."

Kirwan said the recent end of state-ordered gasoline distribution stringencies "should not be interpreted as a signal to return to the faster speeds of former days" and added that state police will see to it that "motorists who waste fuel by driving at speeds exceeding the prescribed limit are made accountable for their actions." He said this would apply to trucks and buses, too.

But drivers interviewed at random recently agreed that trucks and buses were going, as one said, "Vroom, right past, at old speeds."

One incensed driver put it like this:

"I was driving on the Long Island Expressway last Sunday, maintaining 55-60 and staying carefully in the righthand lane. Every car on the road passed me, fast, including trucks. The trucks were the biggest worry because they'd come right up behind, close, then finally veer around me — usually with the driver looking daggers at me, honking his horn. A couple of times they yelled at me. Couldn't hear what, but could guess.

"A weekend earlier, on the New Jersey Turnpike, I stayed in the 55-60 range, in the right lane. I was made to feel that I was practically holding up traffic. Again the trucks came roaring up behind, often with horns blaring, then finally shot around, also acting very angry. Buses on the pike were the same, came charging up blinking their headlights and finally going around.

"I had a similar experience on the Garden State. The few cop vehicles I saw were also going well above the limits."

The general slowdown resulting from the energy crisis has had some remarkable results. A state police spokesman, who said "there's no doubt that people are going faster—but nothing like as fast as before," disclosed some statewide New York figures.

Accidents investigated by state police during the first four months of this year were down 19.2 per cent from the first four months of 1973—from 15,507 to 12,527.

For the four months, fatal accidents dropped 28 per cent from last year—214 to 155. Personal injury accidents declined 17.8 per cent and property damage accidents (no injuries) 19.7.

Speeding arrests for the first five months of 1974 were down 18.9 per cent — 62,185 from last year's 73,916.

However, for the month of May arrests for speeding increased 6.5 over May, 1973—from 16,322 to 17,465.

"So speeding arrests are now going up, and we've been getting more complaints," the spokesman said. "I suspect that from now on our speeding will pick up a little bit."

'Sex and the Coronary Victim'

NEW HYDE PARK, N.Y. (UPI) — Sex may be one of the best forms of exercise for heart patients, acording to Dr. Edward Terry Davison, a staff cardiologist at the Long Island Jewish-Hillside Medical Center.

Davison expressed his opinion to 60 coronary patients attending a recent meeting on "Sex and the Coronary Victim."

Davison said the period of abstinence from sexual activity for a postcoronary patient — normally 13 weeks — was extremely variable.

Dr. Edward Hotchkiss, an internist in the Medical Center's Department of Medicine who is doing research on the psychological effects of heart disease on patients, said, "Participation in the sex act should be resumed on the advice of the physician and, if possible, after stress testing."

Davison said the heart rate of the coronary patient during the sex act depended primarily upon the partner, noting that the pulse of a middle-aged man with an extra-marital partner was generally higher than in an established union.

Hotchkiss said the wife's health and attitude were extremely important in the sex life of a postcoronary male patient and "a re-education and exploration period is necessary for the couple to arrive at satisfactory sexual expression."

Both physicians said, "Patients who regularly exercise experience a marked state of well-being and enjoy life more."

The doctors said that positive effects derived from exercise such as cycling, jogging, swimming and brisk walking, besides sex, included decreased heart rate, reduced blood pressure, increased stamina and circulation and less inclination of the blood to clot abnormally.

Migrant Problem Growing

SWEDESBORO, N.J.(AP) — About a third come from Puerto Rico, their island in the sun. They left there dead broke, hoping one day to return.

Thousands of other migrant farm workers follow the harvests along the East Coast, their children and belongings jammed into battered vehicles resembling those used by the Okies when they went to California 40 years ago.

They pick tomatoes, cucumbers, you name it. They work and sweat and work some more. And buy their food at the company store.

They have helped New Jersey maintain its nickname, "Garden State" but their plight has given the state a black eye.

The "migrant problem" flared into public view earlier last week when State Assemblyman Byron Baer's arm was broken in a melee at the Sorbello migrant farm in this southern New Jersey community. Baer has advocated improved living conditions for migrants.

A Newark Star-Ledger reporter also was beaten.

Baer had gone there to get a rare glimpse inside a New Jersey migrant labor farm. But Marcos Portalatin, the Sorbello foreman accused of breaking Baer's arm, told The Associated Press the 11 workers there don't like "nosey" state officials.

"These people don't come here to help us," he said. "They come here to destroy us and the farmer. If we didn't like working here, we wouldn't be here."

Angel Sanabre, 21, who supports a wife and two children in Puerto Rico, said the workers "get along just like brothers."

Michael Sorbello, one of three owners, contends "publicity seekers like Baer" are just out to make political hay, rather than help the workers.

But among the 20,000 migrants in southern New Jersey, there is considerable discontent.

—The State Department of Labor and Industry reported this week that hundreds of workers are children under age 12, a violation of law.

—Commissioner Joseph A. Hoffman says a number of farmers fail to keep employe records of hours worked and wages paid.

POUGHKEEPSIE — Stephen M. Press, a faculty member at Dutchess Community College since 1970, has been selected as head of the college's new Department of Performing Arts and Communications.

In this capacity, Press will be responsible for speech, theater, and music programs as well as the new associate in science degree program in communications and media arts.

Press has a diversified background in the performing arts. He was the recipient of the Shubert Fellowship in playwriting in 1970-71 and this year received a State University Research Foundation grant.

His recent play "We Need Another Man" was published last year by Modern International Drama and selected as a winner in the first SUNY playwriting competition. He has completed bachelor's and master's degrees at New York University.

Registration Open For the Retarded

POUGHKEEPSIE — Registration is now open for families of mentally retarded, multiple handicapped children for admission to the Dutchess County Rehabilitation Programs Day Training Center in Poughkeepsie.

The school will open in the fall for mentally retarded and handicapped children between the ages of 2 and 16.

The Day Training Center has small classes which are located in a separate wing of the Dutchess County Mental Health Center, and a pre-school unit for children ages 2 to 5 located at the Highland Hospital in Beacon.

Further information can be obtained at the Center's offices at 230 North Road, Poughkeepsie.

Price Reelected BOCES President

POUGHKEEPSIE — Thomas Price has been re-elected president of the Dutchess County Board of Cooperative Educational Services (BOCES) for another year.

Price is senior corporate commodity analyzer at IBM and has served on the board since 1967. He has been elected each year as president since 1970.

Richard Jetto was re-elected vice president. He is an eight year board veteran.

Two board members, Dr. Martin Siegel and Carl Ulrich of Rhinebeck, assumed new five-year terms after having been re-elected as members at the annual meeting. They were elected by school board members of the component school districts in Dutchess County.

Grant to Benefit Dutchess Students

POUGHKEEPSIE — Disadvantaged students at Dutchess Community College will benefit from a $35,000 grant for the establishment of a study skills center, according to DCC president Dr. John J. Connolly.

The grant was made under the provisions of the Vocational Education Act and will assist the college during the 1974-75 academic year.

Establishment of the center, devoted exclusively to the needs of students with learning difficulties, is expected to significantly increase the chances of success for students in occupational programs. More than 200 such students are expected to benefit.

The grant funds will be used to purchase several audio-tutorial systems and developmental course materials, as well as augment its instructional and counseling services.

NEW SERVICE FOR SENIORS — A consultation and referral nursing service recently established by the Nursing Division of Ulster County Health Department in the new senior citizens apartment building, Saugerties is now in full operation. The visiting public health nurse, Mrs. Virginia Lennon conducts an interview with one of the building's tenants. There is no charge for the service to the senior citizen. The current program is conducted one day each week at the senior citizen building. When necessary individual consultation is provided in the senior citizen's apartment.

Resort Plans Changes

By WADE BURKHART

MINNEWASKA

The Lake Minnewaska Resort, in operation since 1879, is about to undergo some fundamental changes in scope, according to plans of the Phillips family which owns and operates it, but they say its character will remain unchanged.

The resort takes its name from Lake Minnewaska, crystal-clear and icy-blue. One of the biggest changes in the resort will be the construction of a new hotel on the site of the present Cliff House, with the new hotel as big as the Cliff House and Wildmere — the other hotel in the resort — combined and designed by noted architect Edward Durrell Stone.

Kenneth Phillips Sr. said the reaction of some people has been to build a new hotel to duplicate the Cliff House, now no longer in use. He said that was "not fair to the location." The Cliff House is old, with bathrooms in the halls and other antiquities, and the rooms fail to take advantage of the location's magnificent views.

The new, Stone-designed, hotel would be two stories higher than the Cliff House, which would bring it up to the height of the Cliff House cupola, and would be fit into the rock ledges lining the lake. It would have about 500 rooms, costing from $30,000 to $40,000 a room to build.

Phillips said his family couldn't afford to build the hotel "in today's money market", but were working on the problem, and might build a 200-room section of the hotel to start with, a size that present business would support.

The Phillipses are not without affection for the Cliff House. "The hotel has outlived its use," said Phillips, "but it's lived it well."

The family is seeking to build a "complete resort." Kenneth Phillips Jr. pointed out, "People don't take vacations the way they used to."

This means that other parts of the present Phillips plans for Minnewaska come into play. They also have planned condominiums and resort apartments, and are in the process of subdividing 136 acres in the Trapps area off Lyons Road into "estate-sized" parcels of about 5 acres. They hope to begin sale of these in September.

Concerning their subdivision, the younger Phillips said "We're very involved in architectural restrictions and land use." He said there will be restrictions on the trees that can be cut, the size of the homes, required housing for vehicles, and similar provisions.

The condominiums are presently planned for the opposite side of Route 44-55 from the lake. "You'll never see the majority of condominiums we build," said the younger Phillips.

If the way in which it is offered will be more varied the main attraction of Minnewaska will remain unchanged. What that is is splendor of some of the finest, and in some ways most unique, scenery in the country. Minnewaska will not become a satellite of the Sullivan County "borscht circuit", the Phillipses say, and the younger Phillips makes a distinction between resorts which entertain people, and those which provide a place for people to entertain themselves.

"Minnewaska is for people who like to get away, to hike, to be by themselves," he said.

The Phillips' plans for Minnewaska affect about 600 acres of the 3,500 which now make up the resort; in addition to the hotels, the resort also includes the Ski Minnewaska and a golf course. The Shawangunk skyline will be unaffected, and the only building activity around Lake Minnewaska will be on the sites of the two present main buildings.

The younger Phillips says they are "practical conservationists," preserving as much of the land as possible while still making it pay for itself.

In deciding their plans for Minnewaska, the Phillipses have sent out questionnaires to their regular patrons, and the younger Phillips said the returns so far show the main attraction of Minnewaska is its "natural beauty."

This provides another inducement for the Phillipses, as "practical conservationists," to preserve their land's qualities. To harm its beauty would jeopardize its greatest economic strength.

In addition to other facilities for the resort, Phillips said sports facilities of all types, including both indoor and outdoor tennis, were planned, which would make the hotel less dependent on the weather for its business.

Their plans are to make Minnewaska "one of the finest resorts in the country," Phillips said.

CONGRESSMAN HOWARD W. ROBISON

Robison's Slot . . . Politicians Interested, but

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

Six months ago when Congressman Howard W. Robison of Tompkins County announced he was retiring after 17 years in the House, he probably had no idea that the vacancy he created would attract no less than nine candidates.

"It would have been nicer if the Republican side didn't have to have a blood letting in the primary," Robison mused, "but I suppose it could be argued that it's good there's so much interest on both sides."

There is evidently a great deal of interest on both sides—there being nine candidates, five Republicans and four Democrats, but paradoxically, there seems to be little interest from the public. And primary day, Sept. 10, is five weeks from next Tuesday.

Robison puts it this way, "While the candidates are interested, the electorate is not. It's a big district, as I found out and it's tough to get around. But these are young men ambitious for the job."

Robison suggests that perhaps the candidates should "do a bit less handshaking and speak out on the issues."

The candidates include, on the Republican side, Edwin L. Crawford, Brome County executive; Alfred J. Libous, mayor of Binghamton; Carl Saddlemire, Tioga County treasurer; Richard H. Knauf, an attorney and a former assemblyman from the Binghamton area and Franklin Resseguie, a Binghamton attorney.

The Democrats are fielding Michael P. Sloan, a Binghamton attorney; Matthew F. McHugh of Ithaca, a former Tompkins County district attorney; Robert M. Kropp, town supervisor of the Town of Union (Endicott) for the past 10 years; and William Schechter of Lake Hill just outside Woodstock, a public relations executive.

Robison represented the district for almost two decades, although it did not extend as far east as it does now, and it is considered "solid Republican country."

The frontrunners in the GOP primary appear to be Crawford and Libous with a recent survey taken by the Binghamton Press listing Libous a 2-1 favorite out of some 400 voters queried—200 Democrats, 200 Republicans—in the 27th District.

Crawford is generally considered the Republican "organization" man in that he has had the support of party regulars since his beginning in politics in the mid 1950's.

Libous, on the other hand, is something of a maverick, taking on the organization in Binghamton in 1969, winning election and then winning reelection last year by the largest majority in the city's history.

Resseguie will be on the ballot regardless of how the Republican primary comes out. Ulster County GOP leader Albert Spada, who says he likes Crawford, said Resseguie was rejected for just that reason. "He told us he would continue the campaign even if he lost the primary," Spada said. "That's not a good Republican."

The other two candidates, Saddlemire and Knauf, are given little chance of winning although their presence in the race will have some effect.

McHugh, based on his track record, of election as a Democrat in a solid Republican county, is considered the front runner on the Democratic side. The fact that he already has Liberal backing hasn't hurt his chances, either.

Sloan, 30, is a young, outspoken attorney, and has campaigned extensively in Ulster County, but as in the case with all the other candidates, will have to score heavily in Broome County (48 per cent of the district's population) in order to win.

Kropp is another Democrat who has won election in Republican stronghold but on a more limited basis than McHugh.

Schecter faces an uphill battle, coming from Ulster County which represents only about 15 per cent of the district's population.

Twelve towns in Ulster County are in the 27th including Hurley, Woodstock, Rosendale, New Paltz, Gardiner, Marbletown, Olive, Denning, Hardenburgh, Rochester, Shandaken and Wawarsing.

The winner of the Republican primary is no doubt counting on Robison's support and Robison has said he will campaign with the GOP winner, if he can. Robison is chairman of Senator Jacob K. Javits' upstate campaign.

"If the House votes for impeachment" — Robison refuses to take a position until after House debate — "it could be in the Senate right through election day," Robison says. "I could be very busy with a senatorial campaign."

"I just don't know," said Robison, a dilemma shared by candidates and voters alike as the 27th District heads for its Sept. 10 showdown.

County Fair . . . New Events Cause Expansion

DRESSING UP BOSSIE

ONE OF MANY HORSE EVENTS

NEW PALTZ

This year's Ulster County Fair, to be held Aug. 8-11, is so full of events both new and old that it has been expanded to four days from its customary three.

The fairgrounds, located on Libertyville Road in New Paltz adjacent to the county home, will be the scene of a circus performance each fair day as one major new attraction. Performaing will be the Isaac Van Amburgh Circus, also known as the Hudson Valley Community Circus.

The circus, with traditional circus acts, will put on a 90-minute show at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 8, and Friday, Aug. 9, at 3 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 10, and at 1 and 4 p. m. Sunday, Aug. 11.

Fair manager Douglass Bartow said that the increased interest in home gardening had prompted the fair to revive the open class vegetable judging for the first time in many years.

In this judging, anyone can enter their vegetables in competition for prizes.

The Miss New York State Teen Ager contest will be held for this area in conjunction with the fair. That event will be held Thursday, beginning at 7:30 p.m., with the winner going on to the statewide contest to be held in Norwich. The winner of that contest goes on to the national contest in Atlantic City.

This year's fair is larger than those in the recent past. Bartow said he had 55 booths filled at the fair, "more than we've had in some years," so many more cattle that a tent will have to be erected to supplement the cattle barn, and plenty of sheep.

"We've had a good sheep show the past two years, and it looks like we're going to have an even better one," Bartow commented.

As another new fair feature, children's games, with the accent on the younger children, will be conducted every fair day at about 2 p.m. Various games will be played, for prizes.

There will again be American Indian dancing, and exhibitions. A helicopter will be at the fair for rides. The Shawangunk Valley sky-Divers will again perform, this year on Friday at 7:30 p.m.

For teen-agers, the Streakers, a rock band, will perform at 8:30 p.m. Friday.

The New York State Police will have an exhibit at the fair this year, for the first time.

The fair schedule for his year is as follows:

Thursday, Aug. 8: 8 a.m., 4H food and vegetable judging; 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., dog obedience judging; 11 a.m., home tanning of sheep skins; 1 p. m. crowning of the Wool Princess; 1:30 p.m. wool spinning and dyeing yarn; 2 p.m., children's contests; 5 p.m., Indian dancing; 6:30 p.m., New Paltz Middle School Band; 7:30 p.m. Miss New York State Teen Ager Contest; 7:30 p.m., circus performance; 8 p. m. sheep shearing; 9 p.m., the movie "Lambing."

Friday, Aug. 9: 9 a. m. dairy cattle judging; 1 p.m. 4H sheep judging; 2 p.m., children's games; 2:30 p.m., 4H beef and steer judging; 6 p.m., Indian dancing; 7 p.m., 4H Dress Revue; 7:30 p.m., sky-diving; 7:30 p.m., gymkhana; 7;30 p.m., circus; 8 p.m., square dancing by the Lefooters; 8 p.m., sheep shearing.

Saturday, Aug. 10: 8:30 a.m. 4H horse show; 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., sheep judging; noon, 4H dog drill team; 2 p.m., dairy judging; 2 p.m., children's games; 3 p.m., wool fleece judging; 3 p.m., circus; 6 p.m., Indian dancing; 7:30 p.m., Wallkill High School Band; 8 p.m., German folk dancing; 8:30 p.m., the Streakers rock band; 9 p.m., the movie "Lambing."

Sunday, Aug. 11: 8 a.m., open class horse show; 1 p.m., circus; 1:30 p.m., presentation of trophy to outstanding 4H shepherd; 2 p.m., 4H dress Revue; 2 p.m., wool spinning and yarn dyeing; 2:30 p.m., 4H awards program; 2:30 p.m., children's games; 3 p.m., home tanning of sheep skins; 3:30 p.m., German folk dancing; 4 p.m., circus; 5 p.m., Parade of Champions.

Plant Seeds From China Arrive at Carey Arboretum

MILLBROOK, N.Y. (UPI) — The first shipment of plant seeds from the People's Republic of China in 20 years has arrived at the Carey Arboretum of the New York Botanical Garden.

Dr. Howard Irwin, president of the Bronx-based Botanical Garden, which oversees the arboretum in this Dutchess County community, said Wednesday the shipment from Nanking, China, may "mark the resumption of exchanges of plant material between the United States and China, which were cut off in the early 1950s."

Irwin said that among the nine varieties of seeds is a type of Chinese ash seed that botanists hope may be resistant to the so-called dieback disease now plaguing native ash trees.

He said the shipment also includes seeds for a Chinese shade tree, called Zelkova, which could be a substitute for American elm, which rapidly is succumbing to Dutch elm disease and soon may become extinct.

Agnew 'Not Dangerous'... Keeps Gun for Protection

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has been determined not to be "dangerous to public safety", and permitted to keep a gun despite his status as a convicted felon.

Federal officials said Wednesday that Agnew had been given permission to keep a gun for personal protection against trespassers on his property and those he said had made threats on his life after he resigned last October.

Rex D. Davis, director of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, said Agnew would be given "relief" from federal laws that restrict gun possession for persons who have been convicted of felonies punishable by imprisonment for more than one year.

Davis said it had been established "to my satisfaction" that Agnew's record and reputation was such that he "will not be likely to act in a manner dangerous to public safety, and that the granting of the relief will not be contrary to the public interest."

Agnew was forced to resign last year after he pleaded no contest to a charge of tax evasion. He is on unsupervised probation.

Miss Susan Jane Norton Weds George A. Barnes

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Norton of 203 Pearl Street, Kingston announce the marriage of his daughter, Susan Jane, to George A. Barnes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Barnes, 38 West Chester Street, Kingston. The bride is also the daughter of the late Jane S. Norton.

The Rev. David L. Bronson officiated at the double ring ceremony Sunday, July 21, at Holy Cross Church, Kingston. Henry Peyer sang wedding selections, accompanied at the organ by Wes Dangler. The bride presented a bouquet at the Blessed Mother's altar.

The bride, give in marriage by her father, selected a gown of imported satapeau fashioned with a modified Empire bodice featuring a lace scalloped Sabrina neckline and long, sheer fitted sleeves. Handclipped, re-embroidered Alecon lace in floral effect, appliqued with a hand-beaded miniature seed pearl design, created a wide V-effect on the bodice. Similar lace in scalloped design bordered the hemline of the full silhouette skirt which terminated in a cathedral-length, built-in train. She wore a matching Alencon lace, Juliette bonnet, highlighted with seed pearl applique, to which was shirred her triple-tiered, silk illusion, finger-tip length veil. She carried her mother's prayer book covered with Georgiana orchids, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Mrs. Laura Norton of Lake Katrine was matron of honor for her sister in a blue chiffon gown in the Empire styling. Multi-colored embroidery accented the ring neckline of the jacket as well as the waistline and cuffs of the semi-bishop sleeves. A Juliet cap of blue chiffon held her long veil and she carried a nosegay of white glamellias, carnations, stephanotis and blue delphinium florets.

Attendants were Mrs. Heather Barnes, sister-in-law of the bridegroom; Debbie Blakely, Debbie Frangello, Consiglia Marallo, Mrs. Linda Bunt, all of Kingston. Alicia Barnes, Kingston, sister of the bridegroom, served as junior bridesmaid. Their gowns were identical in styling to the honor attendant's except in yellow chiffon with matching headpieces. They carried nosegays of white glamellias, yellow pompon chrysanthemums and yellow statice.

George Bunt of Kingston was best man. Ushering were John Barnes, Roy Barnes, James Barnes, all of Kingston, William Barnes, New Jersey, brothers of the bridegroom; and Edward Norton, Lake Katrine, brother-in-law of the bride. Chris Norton, Kingston, brother of the bride, was junior usher.

A reception was given at The Hedges in West Park.

Woman Rescues Dogs Living in 'Sin'

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Now I've heard everything. Some woman out in California was so appalled by animals living in "sin" that she has founded The First Religion For Animals. She recently "married" two poodles, so now I suppose she can sleep better knowing that whatever these dogs do is legal, and therefore respectable.

Anny, do you actually believe that dogs are ashamed of anything they do, and that it makes a difference to them if they are "married" or not?

PUZZLED IN PITTSBURGH

DEAR PUZZLED: A "marriage ceremony" won't mean a thing to a couple of poodles, because dogs are not ashamed of their natural biological urges, which is more than I can say for the lady in California. Her "marrying" the dogs will help HER — not them.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: As the mother of two and grandmother of none (so far), may I jump into the "to-have-or-not-to-have-children" issue?

When anyone asks my daughter (who's been married for four years) whether she plans to have any children, she says: "We're not ready for children yet. Children are great, but once you have them, if you find out that motherhood isn't all it's cracked up to be, you can't send 'em back."

I think her attitude is far more realistic than the girls who get all dewey-eyed over tiny babies — until they spit up, wet their diapers and cry all night.

I know. My children were no picnic to raise, and I admire my daughter and others in her generation who are wise enough to do their growing up before they have children of their own to bring up.

MRS. S. IN VA.

DEAR MRS. S.: Right on! Nothing is sadder than seeing children trying to bring up children.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: My son is being married. His mother and I have been divorced for two years, after 26 years of marriage. She still hasn't married the loverboy who broke up our home.

I have had no contact with my "ex" since our divorce, and although I've forgiven her, I don't care if I never see her again.

I am informed that Loverboy will be at the wedding. I don't wish to shake hands with either him or her.

Wouldn't it just simplify matters if I just stayed away? Any suggestions?

MIDWESTERNITE

DEAR MID: If you want to go to your son's wedding, why let Loverboy keep you away? You needn't shake hands with anyone. Keep a comfortable distance, and if you meet head-on, give them a polite nod, and keep walking.

CONFIDENTIAL TO THOSE READERS WHO CHARGED ME WITH CONSULTING A DOZEN EXPERTS INSTEAD OF A DICTIONARY TO LEARN THE DEFINITION OF THE WORD "NESCIENCE:"

When I came upon the word, whose meaning I did not know, I immediately got out my hernia edition of Webster's New International Dictionary, and looked it up.

I then telephoned a dozen erudite friends, NOT TO LEARN WHAT THE WORD MEANT, BUT TO ASK IF THEY HAD EVER HEARD OF IT.

All were nescient! But after admitting their nescience, each one reached for his dictionary, and looked up the word while still on the telephone.

Am I vindicated?

Antiques Exhibit Now in Woodstock

One of the largest collections of local antiques will be exhibited and sold at the Colony Arts Center, 24 Rock City Road, Woodstock, starting today and continuing through Sunday, Aug. 4.

The largest group of local antiques will be orginal prints of Kingston, the entire Catskills and the Hudson River. Collectors of President Roosevelt memorabilia will be interested in a view of the Hudson River from Hyde Park that was once owned by the president and inherited by his son, Elliot. Other rare items include large views of the Catskills along the Ulster and Delaware and the Grand Hotel in its hey-day. Seekers of Currier and Ives prints of this area will find many scarce ones on view.

Woodstock items include furniture and glassware from the old Woodstock Hotel that faced the village green at the turn of the century before the artists had arrived. Old maps of the Hardenburgh patent and the original drawings and plans of the old Overlook Mountain House have been assembled for this event.

Hours of the show are noon to 6 p.m. Admission is free.

Hints From Heloise

By HELOISE

KEEP POSTED ON THE LATEST BARGAINS!

Dear Heloise:

I know someone who keeps a small stack of post cards on his TV set or on a corner table in his living room so, when he hears a special sale offer on the radio or TV or a suggestion to write his Congressman, consumer protection source, etc., he has the cards right there, and can grab one and write the address as it is being given.

Mr. E.L.S.

LETTER OF THOUGHT:

Dear Heloise:

In today's world, where supply is short and demand and cost are high, someone who has lived through two world wars and the Depression can really show us how to conserve!

Lucky Granddaughter

Dear Heloise:

Small pictures put back to back and covered with clear adhesive shelf paper make a beautiful nontearable picture book for children. Leave ½" to fasten the pages.

Mrs. C. R. Johnson

Dear Heloise:

I use a diaper liner made of cloth-like material. I would use them and then throw them away.

One day I acidentally put a wet one into the diaper pail, put it into the washing machine and then into the dryer.

I was amazed to feel how soft it had come out and that it had not fallen apart.

Now I do this with all of the liners that have only been wet. It sure does help to use a product which gives you your money's worth.

Mrs. Violet Zavolta

Dear Heloise:

I was making cinnamon rolls one night after the stores were closed and I had no cinnamon. So I sprinkled on brown sugar, a box of cherry-flavored gelatin and plenty of melted butter. And then finished baking just like I would cinnamon rolls.

My husband was sure they'd be ruined, but he sure ate them up!

Judy Trullinger

Dear Heloise:

When I make bar cookies, I cut them with my pizza cutter. It cuts much easier than a knife and the cookies look much nicer too.

Mrs. W.H.C.

Dear Heloise:

We have one of those large-sized picnic jugs and we make it do double-duty during the hot weather.

In the morning it's filled with ice cubes and water and placed in a spot on the kitchen counter.

This not only keeps the little ones out of the refrigerator, but it also keeps the cold in and the electric bill down!

Mrs. Mudgett

It's amazing how much cold water the little ones seem to drink during these hot days — and how big they feel when they can draw their own drink out of the jug spigot!

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

It is much easier to open jars that are to be put in the refrigerator is you loosen the cap and reclose the jar before storing in the refrigerator.

Virginia

Dear Heloise:

Cutting buttonholes with a seam ripper is great if you do it very carefully.

Letter of Laughter

Dear Heloise:

I was telling another girl how to make a dunk bag for Girl Scouts. Heloise, she didn't know what nylon net was. I said "My Lord, Heloise will have a heart attack." You guessed it, she didn't know who you were either!!

The rest of my friends couldn't believe it!! Even my husband knows who you are and he didn't know where the school was for a year and a half!

Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST

(c) 1974 The Emily Post Institute, Inc. Distributed by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

Mrs. Delafield, a reader who has contributed many interesting and pertinent thoughts and anecdotes to my column, sent me this little story which, in a sense, is a definition of etiquette in itself:

Dear Mrs. Post: Something just popped into my head which my now deceased mother once said, in speaking of a woman she enjoyed, admired and loved: "When you go into her house, her attitude is not 'Here am I,' but 'Here are you.'" I think I know the woman about whom she spoke and from whom she learned: a bedridden elderly lady who I once had the privilege to meet. She was all that Mother said she was.

Dear Mrs. Post: I am planning to be married soon, and I am wondering if it would be proper to serve refreshments on paper plates and in cups at the reception. We do not have a kitchen in the church, and the reception will be in the church social hall.

Anita

Dear Anita: Since there is no kitchen at the church, I assume you plan to serve only "finger foods" — sandwiches, cookies and wedding cake, for example — with punch or soft drinks. In that case, you may certainly use pretty paper cups and plates. There are very attractive patterns available, designed specifically for weddings.

On the other hand, if you are providing more substantial food, such as casseroles brought from home, it would be better to use china. Either borrow or rent a set if you do not have enough at home. Glassware also can be rented quite inexpensively, but clear plastic glasses will do for the punch.

To make your wedding day the happy, memorable occasion you want it to be, my booklet, "Your Guide to Formal Wedding Procedure," is just what you need. To get a copy, send fifty cents in coins to cover booklet and mailing expenses to Elizabeth L. Post, in care of this newspaper.

Stars Know How to Make It Interesting

By United Press International

If the New York Stars have one knack, it's making a game interesting, even if the opponent is reduced to using a quarterback who hasn't played the position since high school.

All three of the Stars' previous games were decided in the last two minutes and Wednesday night was no exception, although both Jacksonville quarterbacks—Kay Stephenson and Kim Hammond—were on the bench in the last quarter receiving medical attention.

Quarterback Tom Sherman gave the Stars a 24-16 lead early in the third period when he leaped over a pile of defenders for a touchdown and then passed to George Sauer in the corner of the end zone for the action point.

Then the Stars' defense, led by former National Football League All-Stars Gerry Philbin and John Elliott, took over. On the last play of the third period, they descended on Stephenson as he tried to pass and he went out with cartilage damage in his knee and bruised ribs.

In came Hammond and he was thrown for a nine-yard loss in his first play and then knocked unconscious on the second when the Stars' Jerry Ellison fell on his head. That left Jacksonville without a quarterback for almost the entire last period, but the Sharks still almost managed to pull it out.

Jeff Davis, a running back from Mars Hill activated just before gametime, was inserted at quarterback and after a rocky start, he twice brought the Sharks into scoring position only to be intercepted once and have a near TD pass ruled out of bounds.

Jacksonville even went to a shotgun formation before the Stars finally held on for the 24-16 win as Davis' pass in the end zone was knocked down with 18 seconds to go.

"I volunteered to go in," Davis said. "We didn't have anybody else. I was nervous before I went out there, but once I got into the game, I didn't have time to think about it. Somebody had to do it and I had played some quarterback in high school.

"We started just handing the ball off—no fancy stuff—but I knew sooner or later I'd have to put it in the air. I told the guys I'd throw it into the end zone where two or three receivers were and hope someone could come up with the ball. It almost worked. I thought the pass to Tony Lomax was a touchdown, but it's just one of those things.

"I thought we would pull it out. I was hoping."

Tommy Durrance, the league's leading rusher, scored first for Jacksonville on a two-yard run and also ran for the action point. Bob Gladieux tied it for New York with a four-yard run and a plunge for the action point.

Stephenson hit tight end Dennis Hughes with a 56-yard TD pass and Ricky Lake ran for the action point for a 16-8 Sharks' lead, but Andy Huff's one-yard run and Sherman's action point pass to Ray Parson tied the score 16-16 at the half.

In other WFL action, the Birmingham Americans remained unbeaten by edging the winless Detroit Wheels 21-18, the Houston Texans upset the previously unbeaten Florida Blazers 7-6 and the Philadelphia Bell routed the Portland Storm 25-7. Southern California is at Memphis is the national television game tonight.

The league had its worst week in its month-long existence as far as attendance went but that was tempered by the fact that two of the league's smallest stadiums were in use. New York drew 15,648, Detroit 14,614, Houston 16,268 and Portland 13,757.

Americans 21, Wheels 18

Matthew Reed, subbing at quarterback for the injured George Mira, blasted through two tacklers at the goal line to complete a nine-yard TD run with 2:12 left that lifted Birmingham over Detroit. Reed, a 6-4 former Grambling star, kayoed defensive back Floyd Priester on the play.

Detroit had tied the score on a 55-yard run by Jessie Mims and went ahead with 3:49 to go on Eric Guthrie's 29-yard field goal.

Texans 7, Blazers 6

Jim Nance plunged for a TD in the first period—the first touchdown of the season for Houston—and the Texans' defense held on to upend Florida. John Mallory set up Nance's score with a 59-yard interception return and the Houston defense dropped Blazer quarterback Bob Davis six times attempting to pass.

Bell 25, Storm 7

King Corcoran hit 18-of-28 passes for 182 yards and two TDS as Philadelphia manhandled Portland. Corcoran threw TD passes of three yards in the second period and nine yards in the fourth period to tight end Levell Hill and set up a 48-yard field goal by Richie Szaro in a 17-point second period outburst that also featured John Land's 31-yard TD run following a blocked punt recovery.

TD — Even though he is tackled by Mike Townsend (42) of the Sharks, Bob Gladieux (35) of the New York Stars goes over for the first touchdown of the game Wednesday night at Downing Stadium. In the background is Ike Lassiter (77) of Jacksonville. New York won, 24-16. (UPI)

Breaks Even Out for Yankees

OH YEAH! — Lou Piniella, Yankee left fielder, is separated from umpire Art Frantz after Frantz called him out on a close play at first base during Wednesday's game in Milwaukee. Manager Bill Virdon (L) comes over to help plead Piniella's case. Lou was ejected, but the Yanks won the game, 4-3. (UPI)

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Brewers converted four double plays and temporarily tied the score with aid of two wild pitches, but the breaks finally evened out for the New York Yankees Wednesday night.

A misstep by Brewer reliefer Tom Murphy in the eighth inning helped score New York's go-ahead run. It held for a 4-3 victory when, half an inning later, an apparent wild pitch took a Yankee bounce and resulted in George Scott being thrown out at third base.

Walt Williams' forceout grounder scored the winning run for the Yanks, who broke a five-game losing streak and climbed into a fourth-place tie with the Brewers in the American League East.

The Brewers gained a 3-3 tie in the seventh when Robin Yount walked with two out, took second on a single by Bob Hansen and scored on successive wild pitches by winner Dick Tidrow (8-8).

However, loser Bill Travers (2-2) walked the first two Yankees in the eighth and was replaced by Murphy. Roy White, after failing to sacrifice, hit a grounder to the mound.

Murphy picked up the ball and turned to throw to third for a forceout, but saw he had no play because third baseman Don Money was well up the line, anticipating a bunt. Murphy then pivoted to throw to first, but slipped and fell and White was safe, loading the bases.

The runners held on Graig Nettles' short fly to center, but Elliott Maddox scored the winning run on Williams' hopper to Yount at short. The play would have been the third out had Murphy been able to throw out White at first.

"I could have thrown to three different bases, but I just messed it up," Murphy said. "I was going to throw to third, but I didn't see anyone there because it was a bunt situation. Then I went to pivot, but I just fell down."

Scott led off the Brewer eighth with his fourth hit and took second on a sacrifice. He broke for third when reliefer Sparky Lyle fired a slider into the dirt and back to the screen, but catcher Thurman Munson recovered quickly and threw to Nettles at third for the tag.

Had Scott been safe at third, he figured to score moments later when a pitch to Bobby Mitchell sailed over Munson's head.

Munson said Scott "never had a chance" to reach third because the ball caromed hard off the half-foot high concrete base of the grandstand, rather than hitting the wire fencing above the concrete.

"The ball hit the low part of the wall, where it's brick, instead of the screen above it," Munson said. "That brick is only about five inches high, but the ball hit off it and bounced right back to me. I was maybe only 10 feet from the plate when it bounced back."

"That was the break we needed," Nettles said. "We needed to have that ball hit right back, and it did."

The Yanks collected four hits in the fourth inning—Bobby Murcer's seventh homer, two singles and an RBI triple by Chris Chambliss—but scored only two runs because the Brewers' second of four double plays preceded the triple.

Lou Piniella, who grounded into the final double play in the sixth, was ejected for arguing that the relay from second baseman Pedro Garcia pulled Scott off the bag at first.

Scott, who doubled home the Brewers' first run, has 14 hits in 24 times at bat in his last seven games to raise his batting average to .313.

Elsewhere in the American League, Boston edged Detroit, 5-4; Baltimore tripped Cleveland and Gaylord Perry, 7-4; Texas edged Oakland, 7-6; California trounced Chicago, 14-4; and Kansas City which earlier in the day signed the veteran Orlando Cepeda, beat Minnesota, 3-2.

Tiger catcher Gene Lamont missed a third strike allowing Rick Miller, the potential third out, to reach first and Boston went on to score five runs in the inning to beat Detroit. Luis Tiant won his 16th game.

Bobby Grich and Don Baylor each singled home two runs in a five-run first off Perry, who has not won a game since July 3. He is now 15-5 on the season.

Tom Grieve's sacrifice fly scored Alex Johnson with the winning run for Texas as it beat Oakland.

Frank Robinson drove in three runs with two doubles and Dick Lange combined with Luis Quintana to throw a two-hitter for the Angels. Dick Allen and Bill Melton homered for Chicago.

Amos Otis' two-run homer in the ninth carried the Royals to victory.

Report Progress In NFL Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiations toward ending the 32-day-old National Football League player strike made their first real headway Wednesday, as chief federal mediator W. J. Usery supervised nearly 14 hours of discussions.

The talks, which began at 10 a.m., EDT, and paused only for a two-hour lunch break, were recessed at 1:50 a.m., EDT, today.

"There comes a point when it's best to break it off, and I thought it was the best time now," a tired Usery said.

The groups were to return to the bargaining table at 2 p.m., EDT, this afternoon.

Usery would not elaborate on progress made in the session during which he had met separately with representatives of the NFL Players Association and NFL Management Council. The groups held face-to-face discussions for only one hour and 45 minutes.

"We have been talking on all the issues—we've been talking long and hard" said Usery. "The logic is that now that we've got them talking, there's a chance to consummate an agreement.

"We had suggestions back and forth. When you go back and forth, you don't know where you stand."

But apparent progress had been made. Usery later told newsmen that "substantive issues had been discussed."

The statement apparently referred to the "freedom issues" which created the bargaining stalemate and led to the player strike that started July 1.

Today's talks marked the third consecutive day of negotiaions, which were resumed after nine days of silence. Sources predicted today's session might go around the clock in an effort to reach an agreement.

Neither group would comment on Wednesday's meetings.

It was understood that the NFLPA had not presented a counterproposal to the freedom demands, a condition considered necessary for serious bargaining. A source close to the strike talks said Usery's goal was to persuade each side to consider proposals that would neither be totally accepted nor rejected outright.

Reportedly, the joint sessions centered on revised economic conditions made by the players, who were accompanied by an actuary.

Meanwhile, the striking players received a boost from their working brothers on the baseball field.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, voiced his support for the football union and charged NFL owners with a failure to bargain in good faith.

But the NFL players' picket line continues to display gaps.

Seaver Threw the Long Ball

By Combined Services

NEW YORK — Jerry Grote signaled for a Curve Ball.

Tom Seaver tried to throw a Curve Ball.

And Yogi Berra said it was a Curve Ball.

But, then again, it really wasn't.

For posterity, and for the fans in the seats, it's safe to call it a Long Ball.

Seaver threw it, and Pittsburgh slugger Willie Stargell put it where he's put 46 other Met pitches—into the seats.

Stargell, whose 47 career homers against the Mets makes him their No. 1 tormentor in that department, belted a two-run homer in the first inning Wednesday, leading the Pirates to an 8-3 romp over New York.

"He didn't have a breaking ball at all," said Met Manager Berra. "And the homer was on a breaking ball."

It's been 11 years and 45 homers since Stargell started smashing the Mets, but he still remembers No. 1.

"I hit it off a little left-hander with glasses," Stargell remembered. "Ken McKenzie? Yeah, that's him, I guess. I hit it to leftfield with one hand. It only went 273 feet, but it went into the seats."

Although the Mets have since moved into Shea Stadium where a 273-foot fly ball will get you merely a 273-foot fly ball, they still haven't solved the mystery of Stargell.

"How do you pitch to him?" said Berra repeating a reporter's question. "You gotta move the ball in and out on him. There's no one way to pitch to him."

It seems the Mets have only found the wrong ways.

Stargell wasn't the only Pirate to batter Seaver, who leveled his record at 7-7. And Seaver, after giving up eight runs and 12 hits in 4⅓ innings, wasn't around to explain why.

So his roommate, shortstop Bud Harrelson, tried to.

"Tom just couldn't move the ball around," Harrelson said. "No matter where he threw it, it went to the same area. He didn't have his good stuff. There was only one inning when he was really firing the ball.

The Pirates sealed Seaver's fate in the fifth.

Oliver, who tripled before Stargell unloaded his first-inning blast, opened the fifth with a single, crossing to third on Dave Parker's single. Then Manny Sanguillen and Ed Kirkpatrick each singled in a run.

And that was the end of Seaver's unproductive afternoon of pitching.

Bob Miller came in and Sanguillen and Kirkpatrick worked a double steal for a run. Kirkpatrick, who went to third on catcher Grote's wild throw, scored on pitcher Dock Ellis' single.

Ellis, 7-8, gained his fourth straight victory. He allowed six hits, striking out six and walking one.

Elsewhere in the NL, Montreal swept a doubleheader from Chicago, 7-4 and 4-0, St. Louis outlasted Philadelphia 9-8, Cincinnati blanked Houston 4-0, Atlanta whitewashed San Francisco 9-0 and Los Angeles rocked San Diego, 15-4.

Dodgers 15, Padres 4

Ron Cey hit a pair of three-run home runs and drove in eight runs to set a Los Angeles club record as the Dodgers overwhelmed the Padres.

The Dodgers collected a dozen hits and 13 walks off seven Padre pitchers.

Cey hit his homers in the eighth and ninth innings to raise his total for the year to 14. The Dodgers scored six times in the third inning in coasting to the win which enabled them to maintain their 5½ game lead over Cincinnati.

Cey broke his own Los Angeles club record of seven RBIs, which he set against Chicago on June 1 this season.

Cardinals 9, Phillies 8

A pair of big innings plus the gutty pitching of veteran Bob Gibson pushed the Cardinals into a first place tie with the Phils in the topsy-turvy East race. The Cards scored five times in the second on four consecutive singles. Reggie Smith's triple and a fifth single by Ted Simmons. They added three more in the sixth on four more singles and a double. Gibson (6-9) struggled into the eighth, but was tagged for five runs.

Reds 4, Astros 0

Cincy southpaw Don Gullett twirled a two-hitter to gain his 13th win of the season against seven losses. The Reds bunched all their runs in the second and third innings, while Johnny Bench and Cesar Geronimo had two hits apiece and each scored a run.

Braves 9, Giants 0

Catcher Vic Correll belted a grand slam homer in the seventh inning — his first ever in the majors — to back the four-hit shutout pitching of Braves' ace Phil Niekro (11-9). Dave Johnson also drove in a pair of runs for the Braves.

Umpire Stricken

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Umpire Chris Pelekoudas, stricken in the second inning of Wednesday night's Philadelphia-St. Louis game, was listed in satisfactory condition at Methodist Hospital.

A spokeswoman at the Hospital said Pelekoudas, 56, did not suffer a heart attack or stroke as first believed by onlookers at Veterans Stadium. She said his condition was stable.

Pelekoudas left the game when the Phillies made a pitching change in the second inning. Phils' pitching coach Ray Rippelmeyer, who had gone to the mound to make the change, said Pelekoudas told him, "I'm not well. You better get me a doctor."

Phils' trainer Don Seger said Pelekoudas was "suffering from severe hypertension."

Nancy Kolln Leads County Golf With 81

NANCY KOLLN

HIGH FALLS

Had you stopped to predict the first round leaders in the Ulster County Women's Golf Tournament which began Wednesday at Stone Dock you might have said Nancy Kolln, Wiggie DeLisio, and Marilyn Motzkin — probably in that order.

You would have been right.

Ms. Kolln, who two years ago at age 16 became the youngest woman ever to win this event, carded a 43-38-81 to take a one-stroke lead over Mrs. DeLisio, who had nines of 41-41. And Mrs. Motzkin, the defending champ (she beat Mrs. DeLisio in a playoff last year), is third with 42-42-84.

The second and final round will be played next Wednesday at Rondout in Accord.

Scores were generally lower than in last year's opening round, although there were some new names in contention, especially for the low net title.

Last year's low net champ Rosalie Gorman was well down in the pack and her place was taken by Lois Charlton, whose 32 handicap enabled her to card a 69. Elaine Davenport (95-25-70) and Ada Mass (94-24-70) tied for second.

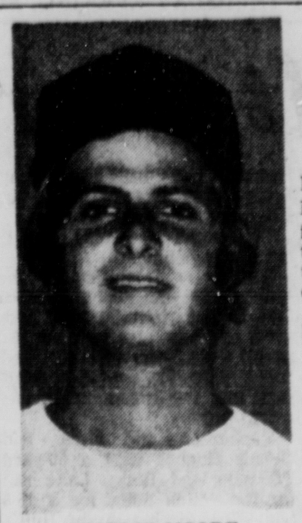

As for the low gross title, it looks exactly like a three-person race. Closest to the top trio are Shorty Chase and Betty Davenport, each with 90, nine shots behind.

Lasers Bounce Braves, 4-2

POUGHKEEPSIE

Some day the Kingston Braves will beat the Poughkeepsie Lasers. Unfortunately for the Braves, there is absolutely no reason to believe that day is soon in coming.

Poughkeepsie just happens to have Kingston's number. The Braves beat everybody in the Hudson Valley Rookie League. Everybody, that is, except the Lasers.

It was no different Wednesday night at Stitzel Field as Poughkeepsie clinched the Northern Division's second round pennant with a 4-2 victory over Kingston.

The Lasers are 11-0 in the second round. Kingston 7-2. Poughkeepsie has won 12 games in a row and stands 17-2 overall. And if it can beat the Braves when they meet again in a makeup first round game, they'll tie for the opening round lead and force a playoff. Kingston is 15-3 overall.

Regardless of what happens in the first round, Poughkeepsie insured itself of a playoff berth for the fifth straight year when it came from behind to scratch out the win Wednesday.

Poughkeepsie reached Braves' starter Charlie Moore for a run in the first on John Alley's single and Loren Battistoni's triple.

The Braves got that back in the second when Moore singled, went to second on a passed ball, to third on an infield out, and home on another passed ball.

Kingston then took the lead in the fourth when Jerry Hawkins double, two men reached on Laser infield miscues and winning pitcher Bill Bartlett forced in a run with a bases loaded walk to Steve Hughes.

Poughkeepsie evened the count in the home half of the inning, a grounder by Rich Grabowitz scoring John Roach, who had singled.

The Lasers then put it away in the fifth when Bob Kozak singled, John Alley doubled him in, and John DeStefano hit a sacrifice fly.

Will Kingston ever beat Poughkeepsie? Stay tuned.

Nationals In Finals

BEACON

The Kingston National All-Star team has reached the finals of the Babe Ruth League 13-year-olds tournament at Memorial Park here.

The Nationals will play an as yet to be determined opponent in the championship game tonight at 7 p.m.

Kingston reached the title tilt Wednesday when it rallied to beat Beacon, 12-6. The day before, the Nationals, on a one-hitter by Greg Locke, crushed their Kingston American rivals, 18-1.

The Nationals broke a 5-5 tie with Beacon by scoring two runs in the fourth and five more in the fifth. Russ Shultis led the win with three hits, while Jim Brown and Curt Jacob had two apiece and Mike Schlanger drove in three runs.

Ed Debrosky hurled the victory in relief of start Vince Ferraro.

A fourth inning single by Dean Winchell was the only hit the Americans could muster off Locke in their meeting Tuesday.

The Nationals managed only nine hits off American hurlers Winchell and Lou Fuoco, but the losers contributed five errors and nine bases on balls to help get the National offense in gear.

Schlanger and Ferraro were the hitting stars for the Nationals. Both had two hits, and Schlanger knocked home four runs. Phil Haber had two RBIs.

It Went Seven Innings, But Mastro Beat Pier 7

KINGSTON

What's a matter with Mastro Construction?

First the AAA City Slow Pitch leaders lose a game by forfeit (when they had to play elsewhere), then they actually had to go the full seven innings to win a game. Incredible.

The team to go the route with Mastro was Pier Seven, losing 9-5 Wednesday night.

In other AAA games, Bud's Subs beat Mosher's, 5-3, and Buster's stopped Wayside Inn, 8-6. In the AA Division, the Jets topped Corner Rest, 8-5, and in the C loop, Datsun moved into a share for the lead by beating Gov. Clinton Cleaners, 10-3.

Mastro still leads the AAA by one game over Beekman Arms and Bud's, and from all indications, it will win at will. What may turn out to be the more interesting race is the home run derby.

John Tremper hit another one Wednesday, giving him a league leading total of eleven. Teammates Chick Boice and Ray Lindhorst also hit for the distance. They have eight apiece. But Dinky Dugan and Dan Vogt, both of Buster's, are creeping up there. Dugan had two last night and Vogt one, giving both nine for the year.

The Jets moved a game behind AA leading Handlebar and Lou's with their win. Charlie Lay had three hits. Tom Barton homered for Corner Rest.

DEBBIE LAWLER, in above sequence photo, takes her Suzuki 250 TM over 16 cars, a distance of 103 feet during ing appearance at Houston's Astrodome last January.

At right, Ms. Lawler poses for Freeman photographer Bob Haines during visit to Kingston this week.

What Will Debbie Lawler Try Next?

By STEVE KANE

KINGSTON

Debbie Lawler said she's thinking about launching herself out over Niagara Falls on a motorcycle and trying to parachute on to one of the islands below while wearing an orange bra.

No, she's not totally crazy . . . she'd be wearing other clothes besides.

Until the details are ironed out, however, Ms. Lawler will content herself with more mundane achievements like clearing ten trucks at the Orange County Fair in Middletown Friday night. The orange bra will be present.

"I always wear it when I jump," she said. "It's lucky. I had it on when I broke my back."

If that doesn't seem like much of a charm, consider the possibilities involved in slamming into a wall at 60 miles per hour.

Debbie Lawler, 21, the World Champion Woman Motorcyclist, the female Evel Knievel, suffered that accident last March at California's Ontario Speedway. A gust of the Santa Ana interrupted her flight over a row of parked cars, slamming the nose of her Suzuki 250 TM down hard on the ramp.

"I hit so hard my hands bent the handlebars down, and they were specially reinforced," she said. "This will be my first jump since then."

It will also be her first jump in the East, but she's no stranger to the rest of the country. In the past two-and-a-half years, Debbie has soared before crowds throughout the West including an audience of 120,000 and a full house in Houston's Astrodome.

"I come from a family of motorcycle racers . . . my father was a professional racer, and my sister was the Oregon Women's Champion. I started out in motocross and was doing that and modeling at the same time in Phoenix when I had an accident and gave up the modeling job."

Along about that time came promoter Charles Samples with the concept of a female motorcycle jumper. Debbie said she "loved the idea," and went into training for six months.

"My first jump was in front of 6,000 people, and I went 76 feet, three inches," she said. She has improved to 145 feet outdoors and 103 feet indoors, both unchallenged records for women.

Why?

Debbie ansered, "To be the best at something . . . to be a champion. It's like the person who climbs the mountain. It's risky and scary, but I make myself feel positively confident when I do it."

The risks at Orange County are a litule different than the usual ones. The approach and braking areas are extremely short, and Debbie said she would have rejected the site if she had personally inspected it before hand.

"But I'm not the kind of person who likes to back out of things," she said. "If people pay for tickets, then they deserve a performance."

This will also be the last jump Debbie will make for a while. After that it's back to training for the first Women's Supersports competition which will be held in the Astrodome in December.

Policemen Set Lineup For Game With Queen

KINGSTON

Can a team of Kingston City Policemen do what local politicians and newsmen couldn't? That's to be determined Friday night when the men in blue face the famed Queen and Her Maids four-girl softball team in an 8 p.m. Dietz Stadium exhibition game.

The Queen, Rosie Beaird, has already set down those two other challenging squads in previous appearances here, but she might have her work cut out for her this time judging from the formidable lineup announced by Deputy Chief Bill Slover.

The Police will go with Al Hutton at first base, Charles McCullough at second, Slover at shortstop, and John Crespino at third.

The shortfielder will be Tom Scarey. Mike Levy will patrol right, Paul Watzka will handle center, and Richard Scherer will be in left.

Reserves include Dom Ausanio, Bob Boughton, Jim Wallace, and Nick Gantner.

And what about the starting battery? Well, Slover is keeping his starting pitcher and catcher a secret until game time.

The roster has also been announced for the team of Kingston Women which will face the Saugerties Athletic Association Love Bugs in a 6 p.m. preliminary contest.

The Kingston team, made up of some of the best players from the City League's Monday Night Division, will be coached by Pat Burke and captained by Mary Senor.

ROSIE WHIPS ONE IN BLINDFOLDED

Also on the club are Ruth Dahondy, Barbara Naccarato, Debbie Swanson, Debbie Hart, Joan Tenchar, Lynn Cecelia, Pam Thomas, Georgette Dunn, Jeanette Ferraro, Kathy Longendyke, Barbara Wenzel, and Andrea Gross.

The Love Bugs are expected to be led by Donna Myers, along with Karen O'Reilly, Betsy Carnright, and Pam Fitzpatrick.

Advance tickets for Friday night's doubleheader are now on sale. Tickets may also be purchased at the Stadium.

Three-Way Tie in Women's League

KINGSTON

Lynette Byrd's single to left in the bottom of the seventh inning drove in Peggy Wright with the winning run as the Garden of Eden handed the Wonderbugs its first loss, 7-6 and created a three-way tie for the lead in the Tuesday Division of the Women's City Softball League.

In other games, Tony's Pizzeria joined the leaders with a 40-1 shellacking of Mahoney's, and the YWCA stayed just a half game behind with a forfeit victory over Holly's Heroes.

The Wonderbugs loaded the bases in the top of the sixth threatening to break open a close game, but a double play started by third baseman Sue Dudek got the Garden of Eden out of a jam and saved a 6-6 tie. Wright singled to lead off the seventh then raced to third on a hit by Pam Vitarius.

Mary Knickerbocker threw a five-hitter to pick up the victory. For the Wonderbugs, which had gone into the contest with a five game winning streak, Pat Benson took the loss.

Sandy DeCicco homered, Aggie Barringer rapped two doubles, and each wound up with five hits as Tony's romped to its fifth win. Camille Lentz and Jill Simmons also tagged two doubles each to support Bernice Jerry's four inning no-hitter.

Tony's began with 20 runs in the first frame. Margie Hulich gave up 32 hits and took the defeat.

'It's How You Play the Game'

MONTICELLO, N.Y. (UPI) — It's not whether you win or lose, it's how you play the game — just ask the mostly male spectators who saw what was billed as the world's first topless tennis match.

The battle pitting Maria and Sandra against Nancy and Barbara — all of them topless dancers — was viewed by 150 persons, most of them middle-aged tennis buffs.

Using its own tennis courts, the match was sponsored by the Delano Motor Lodge which charged a $1 admission fee. The money was donated to the Monticello Volunteer Ambulance Corps — which made a point of saying that it had no active role in the contest.

Barbara, a redhead who wore green sunglasses, listened to instructions on the game and complained that "I've only played ball once before in my life."

After a few so-called practice volleys, the players said they were ready. Delano co-owner Chet Sharo counted to three and they untopped and took to the court.

Some of the male spectators were delighted.

Others began embarrassed conversations with the few women in the audience.

Maria served. She doubled faulted and a point went to the other team. "OK," Sharo said, "that's love 15." Sharo got a few laughs, along with several off-color remarks.

Most points were won on service faults. The few times the ball landed in the appropriate space on the opposite court it wasn't returned.

Maria and Sandra won the match and got a trophy but no one really paid attention to the score.

IT'S NO VW — An unidentified passerby is up to his neck in muddy water as he checks a car for passengers. Fortunately there were none. The car parked on the Turnpike with the brakes off, rolled into the Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., canal coming to rest as shown. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Area Consumers Call for C-H Lawsuit

ELLENVILLE — Concerned Consumers has called on Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation to follow the lead of Consolidated Edison and Long Island Lighting Company and institute a lawsuit against oil suppliers for price gouging and breaking a contract to supply oil at a specified price.

In a letter to Central Hudson, Belle Sundeen, president of Concerned Consumers, pointed out that the electric company is granted a monopoly by the public and therefore owes an obligation to the public to act to protect their interests by seeking fuel supplies at the lowest possible price.

According to Concerned Consumers, the company has failed to resist unwarranted price increases for oil because they were able to automatically pass costs over to customers.

If Central Hudson sued the oil suppliers and won the case the result would be very substantial refunds to customers for previous fuel adjustment charges, the group said.

One Shot, One Molested As Mayor Unveils Policy

NEW YORK (UPI) — Just 12 hours after Mayor Abraham Beame unveiled a new program for fighting subway crime during off-hours, one woman was fatally shot in the back and an another woman was sexually molested during Wednesday's rush hour.

Gloria Brooks, 38, was shot and killed while waiting for a southbound train at an elevated station. It was the ninth subway killing so far this year, matching the total for all of 1973.

Carl Johnson, 25, was arrested a few hours later and charged with homicide and illegal possesssion of a weapon.

In the other incident, a 21-year-old coed told police she was forced to commit a sexual act with a man at a subway station in Brooklyn.

Both incidents occurred some 12 hours after Beame ordered the rear half of most subway trains closed from 8 p.m. to 4 a.m. to double police protection for riders.

The order came three days after a 53-year-old subway rider was shot to death by one of four young thugs on a nearly empty train in a Brooklyn station.

Newburgh Resident Shot Dead

NEWBURGH, N.Y. (UPI) — A Newburgh resident was shot to death Wednesday night and police were questioning a store owner in the case.

Officials said Juan Casillas, 24, was shot at a downtown intersection. He was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Luke's Hospital.

Police said Ismael Gonzalez, 43, owner of the Broadway Deli, a restaurant near the scene of the shooting, was brought in for questioning.

KINGSTON — The YMCA of Kingston and Ulster County will conduct a field trip to the Bronx Zoo Friday, Aug. 9.

Departure time will be 8:30 a.m., from the parking lot in back of the YMCA. The expected return time is 5:30 p.m. Thirty-six spaces are available.

Registration for the trip will be held until Aug. 7. Non-members are eligible. Children should bring a packed lunch and money for a beverage.

I NEVER REALIZED FREEDOM OF CHOICE WAS A CONTROVERSIAL ISSUE!

Freedom of choice and freedom of speech are the corner stones on which our country was built. There are other freedoms too. Freedom to go and come as you want. Freedom to choose your life style. Freedom to buy what you want from whom you please.

Freedom to succeed or fail in business. Freedom to advertise your products or service in a free competitive market place. Freedom to compete with others.

There are those who would take away these and other freedoms. They say it would be for the "public" good. But, how can it be "good" if your freedom of choice in the market place is taken away by administrative action.

Products and services that are freely advertised offer you the opportunity of making your own individual choice. But, without advertising, how are you going to know the benefits of one product or service over the competition. Think about that.

Think how advertising provides you with freedom of choice. Do you really want this freedom taken away?

WHO NEEDS ADVERTISING? YOU DO!

Your Astrograph

Friday, August 2

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Generally a favorable day for you except that you have a tendency to take a little too much of a good thing. Watch your eating and drinking habits.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) This is one of those days when it will seem like you're better appreciated by outsiders than by your own family.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Most of the day you'll get along just fine with everyone but as the evening wears on, you'll become a bit demanding of others.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you're planning an evening on the town you'd better take a little extra cash along. You're apt to spend more than you anticipated.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Later in the day you're likely to run into someone who's as stubborn and adamant about an issue as you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Things you'll be working on today will come so easy you'll sail right through. The trouble is, you'll leave something unfinished that you could have done.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) The breaks come your way most of the day. You could get just a shade overconfident and take one last chance when you shouldn't.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're lucky today in money matters and things that have an element of chance, but don't bump heads with authority figures. That's another story!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Someone you'll be in contact with has some very definite views that are opposed to yours. Don't let him draw you into an argument.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This is not the time to remind a friend of his indebtedness to you. Nothing will be resolved but heated words will ensue.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're counting on an ally to back you up because you think he's in line with your own views. He's not. Be careful.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Others are going to lose respect for you if you keep talking about something you're going to do but haven't done yet.

your birthday

Aug. 2, 1974

Two very interesting people will enter your life this year. Through them, you'll enlarge your circle of friends. Rewards will also come to you through creative efforts.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

CURFEW: (Q.) I have to be in at 9:30 every night. This doesn t mean I can't stay till the end of a dance or party or a big game. But on a regular night, when I'm just going over to a friend's house, or out to play softball, I have to be in an hour-and-a-half before everybody else.

My mother says, "I don't want you roaming the streets." That's a laugh. By 9:30 it's hardly dark. Im 15.—Early Girl in Pennsylvania.

(A.) Your parents are much more elastic than the parents of many 15-year-old girls who write me. Don't push it. Do talk to them now about a latter curfew when you are 16.

HANGOVER: (Q.) My best girl friend and I had a fight. We made up later on. But ever since the fight I have had scared feelings that she talks about me behind my back or really doesn't like me.

The reason is she talked to everybody about our fight and they agreed with her. I would like to talk to her about it, but I am scared that she might just keep doing it to me on purpose. I need help.—Afraid in Alabama.

(A.) Your friend should not have talked around about your personal differences. She may not have known this.

Talk to her about it, as well as your other fears concerning her. Do it not in a combative way but as quietly and calmly as you can.

(Write to Jean Adams, care of The Daily Freeman, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received Jean Adams cannot send personal answers.)

Old Man Z who used to play all the dummy's in the days of auction bridge remarked, "I'm glad I didn't try for severn. I see a couple of finesses available to me, but when I played this hand for Milton Work back in 1925, he had all the finesses wrong. Anyway, I don't need them.

"The finesser would draw trumps and lose a finesse to East's queen of diamonds. Later he would lose the spade finesse to West."

Z took the ace of clubs and ruffed a club. He cashed his ace of trumps led a second trump to dummy's king; ruffed the third club; played king, ace and a small diamond. He ruffed that small diamond in dummy and led the jack of clubs. East followed and Z discarded his deuce of spades. Then he whowed West his hand.

West studies a while and conceded. If he led a spade it would be away from his king right up to Z's ace-queen. If he led a diamond, Z would ruff with dummy's last trump, discard his queen of spades and make the last tricks with the ace of spades and trumps.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

"In God We Trust" was inscribed on some U.S. coins in response to a letter written by Rev. M. R. Watkinson on Nov. 13, 1861, in which he suggested "recognition of the Almighty God in some form on our coins," The World Almanac notes. Some coins bearing the motto appeared in 1864 but it wasn't until 1956 that Congress made it a national motto.

'Meet My Demands Or Prepare for War'

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — Fred Gomez Carrasco spurned an offer of freedom and transportation from his prison stronghold Wednesday, telling penitentiary administrators he wanted to use all 13 of his hostages to shield him and two confederates in their escape.

"Meet my demands or prepare for war," Carrasco said.

A prison spokesman said "our administrators will continue to evaluate this proposal through the evening" and that it would be the first order of business when negotiations resumed today.

Carrasco, believed responsible for 50 murders and sentenced to life in the state penitentiary, has held the 13 hostages at gunpoint for eight days, alternately threatening to shoot them or kill them by detonating bombs.

At one point during the day's negotiations, an enraged Carrasco placed what he said was a bomb in the doorway of the library classroom where he has held the hostages for eight days.

But moments before he said the bomb was due to explode, he removed it.

W. J. Estelle, head of the Texas Corrections Department, told Carrasco earlier Wednesday the TDC would provide transportation to take him, his two confederates, and four hostages safely out of the prison.

He also said the prison would provide him with three bullet-proof vests and drop charges against Carrasco's wife, Rosa, who has been implicated in Carrasco's escape plan.

"To your new and final offer of transportation plus four hostages, it is acceptable after the release of all the rest of the hostages," Estelle said. "In exchange for the safe return of all hostages, the TDC will give you three vests and withdraw the complaint against Rosa Carrasco."

But for some unknown reason, Carrasco —who earlier in the day had said, "The only thing I am asking for is transportation out of here and four hostages" —rejected the latest prison offer.

"Not only do I find them childish, but humiliating," he said. "Any man with a prudent mind will realize (Estelle) is jeopardizing the lives of the civilian hostages and, at this time, the inmate hostages. I can do without the vests."

Carrasco is holding as hostages a Catholic chaplain, three women librarians, three female teachers, two male teachers, three other inmates and a prison guard.

Cyprus Truce in Jeopardy

By United Press International

The Cyprus cease-fire threatened to crumble today, with reports of major Turkish truce violations and a Soviet veto blocking the United Nations from expanding peacekeeping efforts on the war-torn island.

Turkish warships anchored off the northern Cypriot port of Kyrenia shelled two Greek Cypriot towns Wednesday, less than 24 hours after the signing of a three-nation cease-fire agreement in Geneva.

Greek Cypriot leaders denounced the attacks as "gross violations" of the truce and accused Turkey of sending more reinforcements to occupied sections of the embattled island.

At the United Nations, Soviet Ambassador Yakov A. Malik rushed to the Security Council from vacation and vetoed a resolution calling for peacekeeping forces to expand their duties on Cyprus in accordance with the Geneva peace agreement.

Immediately after the dramatic vote Secretary General Kurt Waldheim said Turkey's military commander on Cyprus had demanded U.N. withdrawal from Turkish enclaves. Waldheim said he had no choice but to comply.

In Moscow, the official Soviet news agency Tass said Malik "foiled the attempts" by some NATO members to impose a change in the U.N. role without "sufficient sounding out."

In Athens, Greece's new civilian government began demobilizing its forces today, 12 days after Turkey's invasion of Cyprus brought the nation to the brink of war.

Britain, Greece and Turkey signed the Geneva agreement Tuesday, imposing a standstill cease-fire and adopting a de facto partition of the former British colony between the majority Greeks and minority Turks.

UPI Correspondent Richard C. Gross said Turkish forces shelled the Greek Cypriot villages of Karavas and Lapithos, 10 miles west of Kyrenia on the northern coast.

A U.N. military source said the villages had been shelled by a Turkish warship anchored off Kyrenia in the Mediterranean, forcing withdrawal of Greek-led Cypriot National Guard troops in the area.

Greek Cypriot President Glafkos Clerides protested to the United Nations that Turkish troops moved reinforcements into areas east of Kyrenia and into Karavas, on the western side of the harbor town.

Foreign Minister Dimmy Dimitriou accused Turkey of "gross violations" of the cease-fire but said Greek Cypriot troops were under orders not to engage the Turks in battle.

"The government has ordered all Greek Cypriot troops not to fire if fired upon and withdraw if necessary," he said.

The International Red Cross, which has taken over from the United Nations in supplying refugees with food and medical supplies, accused the Turks of "flagrant violations" of the Geneva Convention.

Red Cross sources said the estimated 30,000 Turkish troops on the island have been looting Greek Cypriot villages and shipping to Turkey vehicles left behind by fleeing foreign nationals.

Another source said the invaders have stripped captured villages of hundreds of Greek Cypriot men, shipping the prisoners to Turkey. He said the total number was not known but it was "close to 1,000."

"All they have left are the women and children," he said.

At the United Nations, the Soviet ambassador vetoed the proposed resolution after the president of the council refused to grant a recess so that the Soviet mission could get instructions from Moscow.

Cataract Surgery for Siberian Tiger

CHICAGO (AP) — A 10-month-old Siberian tiger has undergone cataract surgery, just like humans, more or less.

The 169-pound animal was strapped on his back to a table on Wednesday, draped with gray surgical sheet.. and thoroughly anesthetized—very thoroughly anesthetized.

The tiger lives at Lincoln Park Zoo and is one of a few hundred of the endangered species remaining in the wild and in captivity.

After being sedated, he was taken—like his brother in January—to the University of Illinois medical center, where a team of doctors and nurses awaited him.

Surgery was delayed more than an hour because the medical team had trouble finding a vein in which to inject the anesthetic.

After that, everything went smoothly, with the tiger only occasionally twitching a paw or breathing heavily.

Dr. Edward Cotlier, professor of ophthamology at the university, operated first on the left eye. Then Dr. Samuel J. Vainisi, a Green Bay, Wis., veterinarian, operated on the right eye.

All the while, Dr. Barbara Stein, also a veterinarian, listened to the tiger's heart through her stethoscope and felt his pulse while anesthetic dripped into a vein in the right hind leg.

Vainisi explained the operation, which could be seen on a television screen as it proceeded.

The doctors looked through magnifying lenses as they did their work, first making a tiny incision in the eye, then injecting an instrument to remove the cataract.

The actual removal took only about six minutes for each eye.

The unnamed tiger will be fitted with a big projecting collar so he cannot scratch his eyes while they are healing. His keepers will have to put drops in his eyes three or four times a day for several weeks to aid in the healing.

Dr. Erich R. Maschgan, a Lincoln Park Zoo veterinarian, said the animal had lost 90 per cent of his vision before surgery and had difficulty even finding his food.

"His brother did beautifully," Maschgan said, adding that there is every reason to expect that this animal will too.

Economic Recovery Plan Proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a reply to President Nixon's speech last week urging less consumer spending and more patience, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., has proposed a six-point plan for economic recovery.

In a nationally televised speech on behalf of the Democratic party Wednesday night, Bentsen said Nixon's economic initiatives have been a "patchwork" with "too many changing policies, replacing one another; too many conflicting voices, contradicting one another; too many trials, and far too many errors."

"Sadly, only four things have really been steady — steadily rising prices, steadily dwindling confidence, steadily cheerful assurances from the administration — followed by steadily worsening results," he said.

Nixon planned to meet with his economic advisers today.

Wednesday, administration economic coordinator Kenneth Rush said the threat of impeachment was a "disturbing influence on the economy."

But he also said impeachment "would have no effect on the economy. The policy we are following is the one we think is correct and people should realize it's going to continue."

Bentsen is a freshman senator and a possible contender for the presidential nomination.

"It seemed to me, as I listened, almost as if the clock had been turned back 40 years," he said in reference to Herbert Hoover's Depression promise that "prosperity is just around the corner."

"The President told us that our present economic troubles are everyone's fault — except his and his advisers," Bentsen said. "I felt I was hearing the language of economic cover-up."

Bentsen's proposed "workable program" included three immediate steps and three longer-term goals:

—Channeling loan money to the neediest and most productive industries, such as housing.

—Establishing a cost of living task force to keep track of price increases and wage settlements and to provide guidance to business and labor.

—A "step up (in) our efforts to rein in federal spending."

—Reform of the tax system.

—An "action" plan to increase productivity in business and industry.

—The administration's putting "its own economic house in order."

Two Viet Villages Captured

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist columns pushed ahead with a two-week drive against Da Nang today, overrunning two villages and seizing a pair of outposts near South Vietnam's second largest city.

Field reports said Viet Cong troops captured Son Thang and Son Lanh, twin villages 27 miles southwest of Da Nang, taking most of the 5,000 residents hostage.

The reports said the militia defenders fled at the Communist approach, letting the advancing troops seize the two towns without firing a shot.

Field officers said Communist infantrymen also overran nearby artillery base Lion and militia base Mimoxsas Wednesday, sending about 400 government defenders racing into the surrounding jungle in retreat.

The attacks opened a fifth front in a North Vietnamese and Viet Cong drive against the southwestern approaches to Da Nang, a bustling port city on the South China Sea 370 miles north of Saigon.

The Communists began the drive against Da Nang's outskirts July 17, launching offensives in five districts since then and shelling the port city twice. The Communists have yet to launch a ground attack against Da Nang.

The Saigon command said waves of government warplanes bombed suspected Communist positions in the embattled area Wednesday, flying 82 air strikes and killing 251 Viet Cong.

In Cambodia, rebel forces increased harrassment of government outposts north of Phnom Penh, killing three defenders and wounding 17. Insurgent losses were not known.

Field reports said most of the hit-and-run attacks Wednesday were against government positions along Highway 5. The rest were aimed at outposts along the banks of the Tonle Sap and Mekong rivers.

In Phnom Penh, antiaircraft batteries shot down a government reconnaissance plane when the aircraft apparently strayed by accident over the Chamcar Mon presidential palace.

Military sources said Lt. Heng Sam Ang, pilot of the downed L19 observation plane, was injured seriously in the crash and taken to a Phnom Penh hospital.

In other activity, field reports said insurgents launched a ground attack against the besieged government garrison at Kompong Seila, 69 miles southwest of Phnom Penh, killing one defender and wounding six.

American C130 cargo planes, flying from the U Tapao air base in neighboring Thailand, have been parachuting supplies to the encircled garrison since the siege began two months ago.
